SUBMARINES ARE AGAIN ACTIVE ON BRITISH COASTS

German Underwater Craft Appear on Trade Routes Off the West Coast.

AND FIND TWO VICTIMS

Interest in Land Battles Now Turns to the Russian Baltic Provinces.

New Offensive in the Eastern Zone Expected.

London, May 1.—German submarines, which for two weeks had been confining themselves to the North sea where they sank several trawlers, again have appeared on the trade routes off the west coasts of Ireland and England and caught two victims. They were the British steamer Edale, sunk off the Scilly islands, and the Russian steamer Svorono, attacked off the Blasket islands. Both crews were saved.

Means Another Effort.

That, taken in connection with the warning issued to American travelers on trans-Atlantic liners, doubtless means another attempt with a greater number of submarines to combat the blockade by England. It is announced by the English papers that the admiralty has found a means of dealing with submarines, and the people, in view of the latest attacks upon steamers, are awaiting the result with interest. In face of the submarine attacks, Zeppelin raids and the bombardment of Dunkirk which brings the war closer home, England remains calm as ever. There are some, of course, who feel anxiety over the western battle line, but generally, the feeling is one of optimism, based on success with which the Allies have withstood former attempts of the Germans to get through to the coast ports.

The bombardment of Dunkirk, which was repeated yesterday and which has resulted in considerable loss of life has caused many women and children to leave the town. The Germans can repeat the bombardment whenever they desire with the big guns which formerly were posted on the coast to ward on attacks from the Allied fleet and which have been moved toward Nieuport. Still there is confidence that the navy and airmen will find a mens of dealing with the guns.

On the remainder of the western front things are comparatively quiet, although the French appear to be still on the offensive between the Meuse and the Moselle rivers, the Germans claiming to have repulsed attacks there. Consequently, with the situation at the Dardanelles established, interest has turned against the eastern front and particularly to the Russian Baltic provinces which are being raided by the Germans.

Extent of Raid Unknown.

The extent of this new raid has not been disclosed. Although the Germans announce that the Russians evacuated and burned Svawle and retired toward Mitua, there is no evidence of any big battle being fought and the Russians express confidence in their ability to deal with this new diversion.

Along the East Prussian frontier and in Central Poland there has been a renewal of the fighting which the spring floods interupted, while in the Carpathians, where the ground is drying, the Russians and Austrians again are contending for Uzsok Pass. For the moment, the Russians have turned from their offensive against that pass to attack the Austrians who were threatening their communications in the direction of Stry and have, according to their report, won considerable success, capturing two heights and a number of prisoners. They also claim to have repulsed an attack by the Germans who fold a line near Kvatkow further eastward.

It is believed a big offensive soon will be undertaken on the eastern front, probably by the Germans who have been feeling their way toward the Russian positions around the East Prussian frontier, although this may be feint to hide a movement on some other part of the line.

There is evidence in Athens dispatches that the Allied fleet has resumed the bombardment of the Dardanelles bu there is no official confirmation available.

The French minister of marine, however, expressed the opinion that decisive and definite results would come quickly.

OFFICIAL GERMAN REPORT

Allies' Attacks in the West Beaten Off With Heavy Losses.

Berlin, (via London), May 1.—German headquarters today gave out the following:

"In the western theatre: The battle reported yesterday on the western bank of the Ypres canal ended unsuccessfully for the enemy who lost heavily.

"To the east of the canal and north of Ypres the enemy made several unsuccessful attacks.

"The fort of Dunkirk again was bombarded by our artillery fire.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle only infantry engagements took place in the vicinity of Ailley and Apremont. All the French attacks failed with very heavy loss.

CHINA DEFINITELY REFUSES GROUP FIVE OF THE DEMANDS MADE UPON HER BY JAPANESE

New Draft of Demands, Presented to China After Refusal to Discuss Group Five in the Original, Said by Chinese Authorities to be More Moderate Than at First—Washington Not Surprised at the Action China Has Taken.

Peking, May 2.—China has replied to the Japanese demands in a note, while complying with some of them she definitely refuses to accede to others, including the most important embodied in what is known as group 5.

China has also furnished a list of concessions which she is willing to grant but after perusing the note and list M. Hioki said it was far from complying with the 24 demands as presented by Japan.

This action was taken after President Yuan Shi Kai had thoroughly discussed the entire situation with his cabinet and his advisers. The Chinese plenipotentiaries met the Japanese plenopotentiaries on Saturday at the foreign office and presented China's reply which, in substance refused the so-called demands of Japan.

M. Hioki asked whether these were China's maximum concessions and then whether he should cable his government. Lu Cheng-Hsiang, Chinese minister, replied that these were China's maximum concessions and that the Japanese minister could so inform his government.

The conference terminated with neither the Japanese nor China asking for another meeting. Should Japan now present an ultimatum or occupy further territory in China, it is intimated that the Chinese probably would appeal to the four powers which are pledged to China's independence.

The Chinese note briefly recites the history of the negotiations. It denies Japan's charge that China has displayed procrastination and delayed the conferences by disputing various points, and also the charges of Chinese insincerity and unfriendliness. It further denies that China is conducting a newspaper campaign abroad. These were the reasons the Japanese plenipotentiaries gave for presenting their latest list of 24 demands as a preliminary to an ultimatum.

Nature of Counter Proposals.

The list of concessions is in the nature of counter proposals. China asks the right to participate in an international conference in which the altered status of Shan Tung will be rearranged; indemnity for losses incurred in consequence of the Tsing-Tau campaign and also revocation of its status as before the war. The three requests are repeated from China's original counter proposals.

China offers further concessions with respect to Manchuria almost meeting the Japanese demands. China accedes to three of the four demands regarding Mongolia—the opening of treaty ports, preference in railway loans, and the non-pledging of local taxes. The agricultural demand is rejected.

Respecting the Hanyeh Ping Company, China agrees that, pending the eventual formation of a China-Japanese company the government will not make the company state-owned or borrow foreign capital for the re-payment of the Japanese loan. The Chinese understand that is acceptable to Japan.

China rejects the fifth group, with the exception of the modified Fukien demand offering in this connection a separate note, intended to meet Japan's wishes, by pledging that no foreigners shall receive coastal concessions or contracts without Japan's consent.

Group five comprises seven articles relating to the employment by China of Japanese as advisers in political, financial and military affairs; supervision of the Chinese police; the right of Japanese ownership of land; Japanese supervision over the manufacture or purchase by China of munitions of war, various railway and mining rights and the right by the Japanese to propagate Buddhism in China.

Makes Explanations.

Lu Cheng Hsiang informed M. Hioki at the conference yesterday that the quotations embodied in Japan's revised demands were composed of words and statements of which he had made use in the course of his explanations as to why China could not consider group five, the Japanese minister having requested such explanations. Lu Cheng Hsiang added that as a fundamental misunderstanding existed the plenipotentiaries had better say nothing further concerning group five.

M. Hioki made inquiry regarding the absence of railway concessions to which the Chinese foreign minister replied that China's good faith was at stake, as she had already granted definite concessions to another power.

Group 5, as originally submitted to China provided among other things for employment by the Chinese government of "forceful Japanese" as political, financial and military advisers; participation by the Japanese in the police administration of various important places; Japanese supervision over manufacture and purchase by China of munitions of war and for the granting to Japan of concessions for railway construction and mining and harbor operations.

The new draft of the Japanese demands, which was presented Tuesday reconstructed group 5, in a manner which the Chinese representative declared was more menacing.

"The Chinese refusal was modified to some extent by an offer to meet the revised wishes of Japan in regard to the province of Fukien, providing that China shall give Japan a pledge that no foreign power shall receive a concession and no foreign capital shall be employed without Japan's consent in that province.

WASHINGTON NOT SURPRISED

Washington, May 1.—Rejection by China of the so-called "general group" of the Japanese demands occasioned little surprise in official quarters here. The articles in group 5 have been looked upon since the beginninfi by the Chinese as most vital to the maintenance of the territorial integrity and soverieghty of China.

China early in February practically rejected the same demand by refusing to discuss them. The re-appearance in modified form was believed by the Japanese to offer a basis for compromise; but China's action today indicates her unwillingness to admit the articles to discussion even under modification.

Observers here did not believe that a crisis had been reached, but that with the expression by each side of its

WILSON FORGETS OFFICIAL DUTIES

Helps Plant "Baby" Tree for His Grandson

MASTER FRANCIS SAYRE

President Will Stand Godfather for the Youngster at Christening Today —Hailed by Large Crowds While En Route.

Williamston, Mass., May 1.—Woodrow Wilson laid aside official cares here today and became merely the grandfather of Francis Sayre, the small son of his daughter, Jessie, and of Francis B. Sayre. The President came to Williamston, despite pressing public business, to take part in planting a "baby" tree for his grandson late this evening and to act as one of his god-fathers at the christening ceremony tomorrow.

Practically the entire college population of Williamstown was at the station to welcome the President who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Margaret Wilson, his cousin, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, and his naval aide, Dr. Cary T. Grayson.

Shortly afterward the entire family party, with President Garfield of Williams College, and Mrs. Garfield, gathered on the lawn of the Sayre home and planted a walnut tree presented to Baby Sayre by Mr. Garfield. The President joined in the laughter caused when the child firmly grasped the tree with both hands and tried to take it from his father.

Helps Plant Tree.

As soon as the tree was placed, the President turned a spadeful of earth around its roots. The baby gurgled delightedly and Mr. Wilson patted him on the cheek.

The christening tomorrow will be held in St. Johns' Protestant Episcopal church. Only members of the Sayre and Wilson families will be present. Mr. Sayre is an Episcopalian and the ceremony will be according to that faith, although the Wilson family is Presbyterian.

The President and John Nevin Sayre, of Princeton, Mr. Sayre's brother, will stand sponsor for the baby as godfathers and Miss Agnes Wilson, of Philadelphia, will be god-mother. She was associated with Mrs. Sayre in settlement work in Philadelphia prior to the latter's marriage.

A large collection of presents including a drinking cup from the President, were received by the baby today. The President also brought a baseball and bat given him for the baby by the Washington American League baseball team.

Mr. Wilson spent the night quietly at the Sayre home.

The President was greeted by large crowds at Troy and Hoosac Falls, N. Y., and several other towns. At Troy Mayor Burns welcomed him as he took a short walk about the streets, shaking hands with many persons.

"The people of the United States want continued peace and appreciate that you have been keeping us out of trouble," said Mayor Burns.

"Thank you," replied the President. "I know the United States wants peace."

He remarked that he "had been sentenced to several years of hard labor, and seldom had an opportunity of getting outside of Washington."

The President, it became known was only slightly disturbed by the sudden stopping of his train at West Philadelphia early today when the brakes were quickly applied. Other members of his family were badly shaken and a porter fell against a door glass breaking it. Railroad officials explained the sudden application of the brakes was due to a mistake.

SHIPS STAY AT NORFOLK.

Secretary Daniels Says He Had No Idea of Changing Raiders.

Norfolk, Va., May 1.—Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, after a conference with Rear Admiral Beatty, commanding the Norfolk Navy Yard, this afternoon announced that the interned German auxiliary cruisers Kronprinz Wilhelm and Eitel Friedrich would remain at the Norfolk navy yard, until the close of the European war.

Secretary Daniels said he had no intention of sending either of the ships to any other port than Norfolk. He declared that reports to the contrary were unfounded. Secretary Daniels arrived here at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and at 4 o'clock he stated the German ships would be interned at Norfolk.

The Kronprinz Wilhelm now at Newport News, will probably come to Norfolk Monday.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

Crew of Vessel Saved—Attack Made Without Warning.

Scilly Island, May 1.—The crew of 24 of the British steamer Edale, which was sunk off these islands by a submarine today while on a voyage from the River Platte, South America, to Manchester, with grain, have been landed here by a patrol boat. They say the Edale was torpedoed without notice and that they did not see the submarine until after they were in their life boats.

A patrol boat is reported to have been struck and severely damaged by a shell fired from the submarine.

Montevideo, Uruguay, May 1.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which sailed from Montevideo April 2, returned to this port today. The Glasgow was off the Virginia capes last month aiding in the patrol after the arrival at Newport News of the German cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm. The patrol was abandoned after the the German warship was interned.

FIRST PLACE IN THE FIELD OF INTERNATIONAL FINANCE MAY COME TO UNITED STATES

W. P. G. Harding, in Addressing Academy of Political and Social Science at Philadelphia, Emphasizes That Fact, But Warns the People to Resist Any Tendency Toward Inflation and Wild Temporary Boom. Final Session is Held.

Philadelphia, May 1.—First place in the field of international finance may come to the United States as a consequence of the European war, W. P. G. Harding, member of the Federal Reserve Board, said in an address at today's session of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

To obtain that pre-eminence in international finance, however, Mr. Harding warned his hearers that the United States must resist any tendency toward inflation and a wild temporary boom, such as history has shown frequently follows the conclusion of the great war. He told them the nation now was in a commanding position as the only great world power not involved in war and pointed to the big trade balance that has been in favor of the United States. This balance, he predicted, might reach $2,000,000,000 by the end of 1915.

"We should not forget," said Mr. Harding, "that restoration of peace will necessarily bring about many readjustments.

"Great Britain, Germany and France will use every effort to recover lost trade and will endeavor to avail themselves of American markets; our margin of exports over imports will shrink, and as war debts are permanently funded, securities will doubtless be sold by citizens of countries lately at war to enable them to subscribe to their national loans. The volume of these sales will be governed partly by security prices and by trade balances and the effect upon our money market will depend upon the provision we have made in advance to offset or to finance the purchase.

Resist Inflation Tendency.

"By resisting the not unnatural desire to get rich quickly, by exercising patience and self control and by adopting a policy of wise statesmanship in husbanding our resources and applying them only in directions which will tend towards bringing the best ultimate results, not to the individual but to the nation as a whole, our position upon the re-establishment of peace will be far stronger than it was before the war began. We shall be able thereby to hold and to follow up advantages gained and shall reach ultimately not second or third, but first place in the field of international finance."

Dr. Bernhard Dernberg, former colonial secretary of Germany, entered a protest against a declaration said to have been made at last night's meeting that Germany had protested against the right of the United States to sell and distribute arms to belligerent countries.

Dr. Dernberg came here as a listener to the discussions on the effect of the European war on America's interests, but at the close of today's session made a brief speech declaring that Germany had only complained of inequality of treatment in that foodstuffs are shut out of Germany whereas there is a free transit of arms to Great Britain.

A paper prepared by James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, was read in which he wrote that the investment of capital in Central and Southern Republics is necessary to increase the export trade of this country.

Dr. Luis F. Corea, former minister from Nicaragua to the United States, declared that if the United States were to be involved in a foreign war, it would not be long, for the Latin American republics would, in his opinion, "demonstrate that the territory of this continent cannot be attacked with impunity."

Vanderlip Speaks.

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the Natiegal City Bank, New York, declared the United States had not yet felt the full financial effect of the European war. He said the inflation of note issues and the inflation of credit in the European countries at war had acted as a cushion against the shock. He thought the effect on the financial situation would eventually be felt more seriously than it is at present.

The present easy money situation in the United States, according to T. W. Lamont, of the Morgan banking firm of New York, was not due to excessive inflation in Europe.

Mr. Lamont said that only time could tell whether New York would supercede London as the world's money center. Even with the wonderful resources, he said, it would probably be many years before America could become the financial center. To become so, he added, the United States must build up new markets.

The meeting closed tonight with a discussion of America's possible contribution to a constructive peace.

A paper by G. Lowes Dickinson, of Kings College, England, was read in which he suggested that peace be established through the intervention of President Wilson.

CITY OF COLON, PANAMA, IS SCENE OF DESOLATION

Ten Die in Fire—Hundreds Are Homeless—$2,000,000 Damage. Relief.

Colon, May 1.—The city of Colon, half of which was destroyed by fire yesterday, presented a scene of desolation today. According to police records, ten persons, two of whom were Panama policemen, perished and many were injured. The loss is still estimated at $2,000,000. The American consulate was among the buildings destroyed.

Countless persons are homeless, some wandering about the streets. Business is almost at a standstill although merchants are trying to resume. Bread lines have been established and homeless women and children are being cared for as far as possible. A huge tent city has been erected under the auspices of American military authorities.

General Clarence R. Edward, military commander of the Canal Zone, has ordered two more companies of infantry on patrol duty to prevent looting. He also has ordered a trainload of supplies. Because the largest importers of foodstuffs were located in the burned area there is a perceptible shortage of supplies, which, however, are being augmented from the canal commission at which has established temporary stores in the burned district.

It is said that only a few of the establishments were insured.

NEUTRALS WARNED NOT TO CROSS SEA IN ALLIED SHIPS

ARE OPEN TO ATTACK

Passengers on Liners Get Telegrams Saying Vessels Will be Torpedoed.

State Department May Take a Hand in Matter.

Washington, May 1.—The State Department has not decided to take any action, so far as could be learned tonight, over the German embassy advertisement in numerous newspapers warning American travelers of the risk they ran in traversing the war zone in merchant vessels belonging to Germany's enemies.

It was understood that the British and French embassies mentioned the advertisement today to departmental officials, though in an informal way and without making any specific complaint or request.

The attitude of the State Department is understood to be such that it may take no notice of the advertisement unless formal complaint is made. The basis for any such complaint remains to be defined, as some official admit there is, so far as they know, no precedent.

The usual course pursued by a diplomatic representative of a foreign government in Washington who wishes to communicate with the American public it was pointed out, is to address a suitable request to the State Department.

It is admitted, however, that since the beginning of the present war, virtually all the belligerent nations have made free use of the American newspaper advertising columns without reference to the department in urging their nationals to return to their home countries for military service.

PASSENGERS GET MESSAGES.

Signed With Fictitious Names Saying Vessels Will be Torpedoed at Sea.

New York, May 1.—Several persons among the 1,310 passengers who sailed today on the Lusitania received telegrams at the pier, signed by names unknown to them and presumably fictitious, addressing them not to sail, as the liner was to be torpedoed.

One of those who received such a message was Alfred G. Vanderbilt. He destroyed the telegram without comment.

Charles P. Sumner, general agent of the Cunard Line, said the Lusitania's voyage was attended by no risk whatever. She has a speed of 25 1-2 knots, he pointed out, and is provided with unusual water tight bulkheads. The boilers are in the middle of the ship and next to these are coal bunkers, 30 feet deep.

Besides the 1,310 passengers carried by the Lusitania, it was estimated that there were upwards of 1,700 passengers on four other liners sailing today. This was the largest number of trans-Atlantic travelers to leave New York in a single day this spring.

Apparently the notice, published early today over the signature of the German embassy reminding passengers that vessels flying the flags of the Allies are liable to destruction in the war zone around the British Isles hadno effect on the traveling public. There were the usual number of last minute cancellations, but no more than customary, it was said at the various steamship offices.

Besides the Lusitania, other ships sailing were the British liner Canopic for Mediterraneau ports, by way of Bergen; the Danish liner Bergensford, for Bergen; the Dutch steamer Rotterdam, for Rotterdam, and the American liner New York, for Liverpool.

The British liner Cameronia, due to sail for Glasgow, received cable orders an hour before sailing time to remain in New York. The message said the lined had been taken over by the British government, presumably for the transportation of Canadian troops.

The Cameronia's passengers were placed on the Lusitania.

The Cameronia remained at her dock here. She had received no sailing orders late today.

SEVERE STORM SWEEPS THE PACIFIC COAST

One Vessel Lost and Many Others Disabled by Gale—Fruit Not Hurt.

San Diego, Cal., May 1.—Eleven of the crew of the steamship Victoria, which foundered off the Coronado Islands late Friday, were picked up by the schooner Flier today on its way to their rescue. They had taken to the life boats shortly before the Victoria sank.

The men chose to remain on the leaking vessel, hoping to save her when the 15 passengers were taken off last night by the American Hawaiian steamer America.

RUSSIAN STEAMER SUNK

Vessel Attacked and Destroyed by German Submarine.

London, May 1.—The Russian 2,000 ton steamer Svorono, bearing coal to Archangel, a Russian port on the White sea, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine believed to be the U-23 on Friday at noon near the Blasket islands, on the west coast of Ireland.

The Svorono's crew of 24 men mostly Russians, barely had time to take to the boats when the vessel sank. All were rescued by a patrol boat.

NAVAL CARNIVAL HELD AT NORFOLK

Twenty-Five Thousand People Attend—Huge Success.

DANIELS MAKES SPEECH

Feature of the Day Was Sham Battle Between Two Armies of Enlisted Men—Red Cross Corps Gives a Demonstration.

Norfolk, Va., May 1.—Naval officers, enlisted men and society women elbowed with each other today at the first naval carnival ever given in this section. It was held on the grounds of the naval training station and 25,000 people passed through the gates.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels witnessed a dress parade and drill by 1,500 enlisted men this afternoon and later stood bareheaded in the rain and addressed 10,000 people.

He declared the navy today is stronger than it ever was. He said it had made more progress the past two years than ever before. He said the last Congress had done more for the navy than any other Congress had done. He praised the officers and men for making the carnival a success.

The feature of the day was a sham battle between 1,500 sailors. Over 50,000 rounds of small ammunition and 250 rounds of three-inch ammunition was used.

The forces were divided into two "armies"—the "offensives" and the "defensives." The former, commanded by Chief Quartermaster Noon, were declared the victors, after they charged the "defensives" commanded by Chief

WOMEN TO DEMAND CESSATION OF WAR

International Congress of Women Concludes Session.

DELEGATION TO RULERS

Meeting at The Hague Yesterday Thrown Into an Uproar When Resolution Introduced—Resolution Modified.

The Hague, Netherland, May 1, via London.—The International Congress of Women concluded its sessions here today after adopting a proposal to send delegations to the President of the United States and to the heads of all European powers to demand immediate cessation of the war.

Mrs. Rosika Schwimmer, president of the Hungarian Womans' Suffrage Association, offered the proposal. It met the sharpest opposition and threw the gathering into great confusion.

After the motion finally had been adopted the congress passed this resolution, brought forward by Mrs. Schwimmer and Miss Julia Grace Wales, of the University of Wisconsin:

"The International Congress of Women resolves immediately to ask neutral countries to take steps to create a conference of neutrals which without delay shall offer continuous mediation by inviting suggestions for a settlement from each of the belligerents and by submitting to all of them simultaneously reasonable proposals as a basis for peace."

Mrs. Fannie Andrews, of Boston, read a manifesto covering all the points dealt with by the congress. This man-

RAE TANZER AGAIN CHANGES HER MIND

Once More Identifies Jas. W. Osborne as "Dear Oliver."

WHILE ON THE STAND

New York Milliner, Who Brought $50,000 Suit for Breach of Promise Against James W. Osborne and Later Dropped It.

New York, May 1.—Rae Tanzer, the young milliner who sued James W. Osborne for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry and later withdrew her suit saying Mr. Osborne was not the man who courted her under the name of Oliver Osborne, changed her testimony again today and under oath identified James W. Osborne as her admirer, Oliver Osborne.

Miss Tanzer's renewed identification came while she was under cross examination by Assistant United States District Attorney Wood. She was on the stand as a defense witness in the trial of Frank D. Safford, former clerk in the Kensington Hotel in Plainfield, N. J., for perjury in connection with the breach of promise case. Miss Tanzer, on advice of her counsel, had refused to answer many questions put to her on direct examination regarding the identity of the "Oliver Osborne", who had promised to marry her when Mr. Wood took up his cross examination questioning her with severity, she apparently lost her temper and forgot the instructions of her counsel.

"Yes," she declared, "James W. Osborne is the man I was running around with."

"Do you mean to say," asked Wood,

AMERICAN VESSEL DAMAGED BY BOMB

Steamer Cushing Was Struck by Missile From Airship.

REPORT FROM VANDYKE

Steamer Reported Attacked by German Aircraft Several Days Ago and Thought Undamaged Was Struck.

Washington, May 1.—American Minister Van Dyke at The Hague reported to the State Department today that the American steamer Cushing, from Philadelphia to Rotterdam, was damaged by the bombs dropped on her from German aircraft in the North Sea but that no lives were lost.

The report was brief, transmitting a message from the American consulate at Rotterdam where the Cushing arrived yesterday. It gave no intimation of the nature or extent of the damage. The text was:

"The American consul Rotterdam reports American steamship Cushing, Captain Hurland, with petroleum, from New York to Rotterdam, flying American flag was attacked by German aeroplanes near North Hinder Lightship, afternoon April 29. Three bombs dropped. One struck ship causing damage but no life lost."

Secretary Bryan said the message would be forwarded to Ambassador Gerard in Berlin. While Mr. Bryan did not say what instructions would be sent it was presumed the Ambassador would be directed to ask the German foreign office for any information bearing on the attac kon the Cushing.

extreme position the way would be opened for compromises.

It is known, however, that Japan will continue, at all events, to insist on an acceptance of her demands for railway rights included in group 5, as well as the article relating to the purchase of arms and ammunition by China in Japan. One of the most important demands in group 5, which China now has rejected and of peculiar interest to the American missionary is that asking for the right to discuss at a future date the propagation of Buddhism in China. The Japanese many years ago endeavored to introduce that form of worship into China on an extensive scale but the Chinese dynasty refused to permit it.

The Red Cross corps after the battle gave a realistic demonstration of his dead and dying soldiers are cared for on the battlefield. A permanent internatonal committee was formed. It will make recommendations for conferences at The Hague and arrange for a peace conference of women to be held at the same time and place as the peace conference at the end of the war.

The resolution referring to fortifications which was passed yesterday, was modified today so that it now provides simply that the seas shall be open to all nations on equal terms.

ARRESTED IN KNOXVILLE.

Plummer Gilbert is Charged With Being Accomplice in Robbery.

Sheriff Cowan received a message from Knoxville, Tenn., yesterday afternoon saying that Plummer Gilbert, a white youth of Wilmington, had been arrested in that city and lodged in jail to await the arrival of an officer from New Hanover. The arrest was made upon a warrant sworn out before Justice Harriss by Mr. H. Mack Godwin charging Gilbert with being an accomplice in the robbery of Polvogt's store two weeks ago. Sheriff Cowan wired the Knoxville officers to make the arrest after the warrant was sworn out here.

There have been several arrests made in connection with the robbery. Ed Smith is in jail in default of $250 bond on a charge of having been connected with it and is to have a hearing before Justice Harriss tomorrow. Ben Morris and Clarence Hewlett, two young white men, have also been arrested and are out on bond for their appearance before the Recorder tomorrow. It is hinted in official circles that there is to be still another arrest, if the person under suspicion can be located.

Sheriff Cowan will leave for Knoxville this afternoon at 3:45 to bring Gilbert back to Wilmington. According to the information from the chief of police there, Gilbert says he will waive extradition papers. The sheriff will arrive in Knoxville tomorrow at noon and returning, expects to reach Wilmington with his prisoner Wednesday night.

NEGROES SENTENCED TO DEATH.

For Murder of White Man in Guilford County.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Greensboro, N. C., May 1.—Jeff Dorsett and Ed Walker, negroes, were today sentenced to be electrocuted on June 11th for the murder of John Swain, white, last January. Both gave notice of appeal to Supreme Court.

TO THE PEOPLE.

Results are what count. The world after all is seeking the man who does things; the fellow who makes good—the man who accomplishes something—the builder who complies with his contract—the man who completes the job. There are two Democrats from the First Ward presented to the people, for their choice on Tuesday. Mr. W. F. Jones, the present incumbent, and Mr. Walter Boesch, the candidate.

In the primary held on April 20th, Mr. W. F. Jones, the present incumbent, led the ticket; the people of the First Ward endorsed his administration of affairs by a large majority against Mr. Boesch.

Is it not only right and proper that we, who live in other wards, should recognize, uphold and respect the views of the people who live and reside in the Ward with Mr. Boesch and Mr. Jones—the people who intimately know them both; the people of the First Ward. They, those people, those who know both of these men best, have said they want the present incumbent, Mr. Jones. Now, with reference to the qualifications of these men—who is Mr. Boesch? Who is Mr. Jones?

Mr. Jones is the present incumbent, a lawyer of excellent standing in his profession—the man who has honestly, conscientiously and in a broadminded—intelligent, business-like way administered the affairs of this city, in his Department, in a successful, laudatory manner, contributing to the security of this community in every respect—he being the able and efficient chairman of the Department of Public Safety.

Who is Mr. Boesch? A good fellow—means well—but what has he done? Who knows him? What are his qualifications? INQUIRER.

BRADSHAW FOR COUNCILMAN.

In the Democratic primary, held on April 20th, 1915, the Democratic voters of Fifth ward, in expressing their views by their votes decided, by a large majority, that they did NOT WANT Mr. Charlie Lochlin to continue to represent them as councilman. They were not satisfied with his conduct in office.

They voted, by a tremendous majority that they wanted W. J. Bradshaw. Both Mr. Bradshaw and Mr. Lochlin live in the Fifth ward, they both associate and commingle with the people of the Fifth Ward. Who then is the best judge of their qualifications? Naturally the people with whom they live and associate; the people of the Fifth Ward.

Why should not we Democrats when we vote in the various wards, ratify and endorse the choice of the Fifth Ward? Would it be right to elect Mr. Loughlin; force him on the people when his own ward said by an overwhelming majority they did not want him?

Vote for Bradshaw, the choice of the people who live with and who know him—an honest, upright, intelligent and worthy son of the Fifth Ward that has always upheld the banner of Democracy.

Let "Local Self Government and Home Rule" be still the slogan of Democracy as it was in the olden days—the days of Vance, the Immortal Son of Democracy. Respectfully,

DEMOCRAT.

"that the man you saw at 115 Broadway (James W. Osborne's office) was Oliver Osborne?"

"Yes, I do."

"Now, Miss Tanzer, do you mean to say that this is the man you were running around with as 'Oliver Osborne'?" asked Mr. Wood, pointing to Mr. Osborne, who he asked to rise.

Miss Tanzer hesitated as James W. Osborne rose to his feet. She glanced at Osborne for a moment and said: "Yes, that is the man."

Mr. Osborne smiled broadly at this assertion and then sat down.

At the conclusion of Miss Tanzer's examination her sister, Dora, also identified James W. Osborne as "Oliver Osborne."

True Democracy

Does the opinion of the voters of the Fifth Ward amount to anything?

Does not the overwhelming majority given W. J. Bradshaw in the primary, April 20th, express in no uncertain tones the one the people of that ward have chosen to represent them?

In view of the fact would it not be an injustice and a reflection on the intelligence of the voters of that ward, by electing at large a man whom the people by so large a majority did not want?

Make a self case, Mr. Voter, and help the Fifth Ward to elect the man it wants.

He can ably represent the city as well as he can the Fifth Ward.

The Golden Rule is:

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Reason: "In the Past He Has Not Respected Contractual Obligations."

Cincinnati, May 1.—The National Baseball Commission today refused the application for reinstatement of Benny Kauff, Brooklyn Federal League player, who signed a New York National League contract on last Thursday. The commission's finding follows:

"Player B. Kauff applies to the National Commission for re-instatement in organized baseball. GIANTS AND W. L. I. WIN CITY LEAGUE GETS AWAY

Boys' Brigade and Y. M. C. A. Defeated in Season's First.

Exhibitions at Sunset Show Lack of Practice—Spurts of Mid-Season Playing Feature the Games. Pitchers' Work Good.

RESULTS AT SUNSET.
Giants 10; Boys' Brigade 2.
W. L. I. 7; Y. M. C. A. 1.

Yesterday saw the opening of the City League with two fairly good games of ball witnessed by a fairly good sized crowd at Sunset Park. Lack of practice was evident on all sides. A few ordinary mid-season-form plays were pulled off which added some life to the otherwise featureless exhibitions. The pitchers showed good condition for the season's first game and all four were credited with a number of strike-outs, Register of the Giants being credited with 17; Holt with six; Green with 10, and Hamilton with 13. Green allowed the Y. M. C. A. players only two scattered hits.

Before the game the Y. M. C. A. boosters, headed by a brass band, paraded the streets in automobiles in an effort to inspire enthusiasm among the people of the city and urge them to attend the games at Sunset Park. Mayor Moore was in the parade in which some thirty machines took part. On arrival at the grounds the boosters paraded around the diamond amid many cheers.

Promptly at 3 o'clock Mayor Moore was escorted into the pitchers box by the Boosters official flag bearer and tossed the first ball to the catcher. Here the fans of Wilmington learned something. Their Mayor is left handed.

The game between the Giants and the Boys' Brigade was very loosely played. Errors and hits being frequent, with the first mentioned in the ascendancy. Holt, pitching for the Boys' Brigade, made a game fight, but support was lacking and his team suffered defeat. Register, of the Giants, keeping the hits of Brigade boys well scattered and holding them scoreless until the ninth inning. The score by innings:
Giants .....030 220 003—10 11 3
Boys Brigade ...000 000 002— 2 4 6
Struck out, by Register 17, by Holt 6; two base hits, Snakenburg, Hines, Kite, Buck; three base hits, Snakenburg; base on balls, off Register 2, off Holt 1; time of game, 1 hour and 50 minutes.

The Second Game.

The game between the W. L. I. and the Y. M. C. A. was a little faster and the players showed the advantage of gymnasium work during the winter. The W. L. I. boys played well behind Green and robbed the "Y" players of several hits during the game. Hamilton pitched a steady game throughout but was accorded poor support at almost every turn. The score by innings:
Y. M. C. A.....000 010 000—1 2 2
W. L. I. .....140 101 00*—7 8 1
Struck out, by Hamilton 13, by Green 10; two base hits, Bundy; base on balls, off Hamilton one, of Green two; time of game, two hours.

St. Louis, May 1.—Umpire Rigler and Manager Herzog, of Cincinnati, fought on the local National League field today and later caused each other's arrest on charges of disturbing the peace.

In the seventh inning Huggins, of St. Louis, put Leach, of Cincinnati, out at second by the hidden ball trick. Herzog disputed Rigler's decision and was ordered off the field. A few minutes later he returned and, according to Rigler, insulted the umpire. Rigler tore off his mask and struck Herzog in the face with it. The two struggled until the fellow players and 12 policemen separated them. Herzog suffered a bleeding nose and discolored eye. Rigler was unmarked. St. Louis won from the visitors 9 to 5.

Rocky Mount, May 1.—One measly hit for the Shipbuilders, 16 for the Tar Heels writes into history a ten to one defeat of Newport News at the hands of the locals this afternoon in a game played under weather conditions that were anything but auspicious for baseball, Pope, from the firing pit for the Tar Heels, held the Builders well in his grasp and the one safe clout charged against him was for bunting in the first when this right hand hitter pulled one down the first base line for the locals. It was hitting day and in five innings Mullen was placed about and out of the park for 12 safe ones that ranged from singles to homers, while Chamlin, who followed to the mound, fared but a little bit better and four hits in three innings were connected, three in an inning, and score two runs.

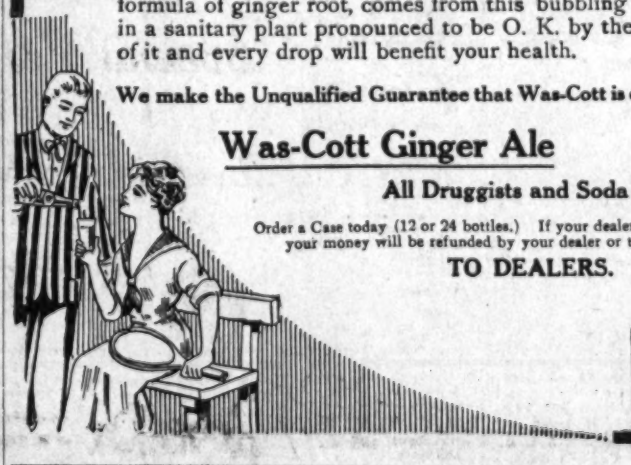
BETTER THAN IMPORTED
at 1/2 the price
WAS-COTT Ginger Ale

It is a common saying, when referring to Ginger Ale that it is as good or not as good as "The Imported". We want to hammer home this comparison and these facts about Ginger Ale.

96 per cent of Ginger Ale is water. The reason that imported ales are considered so good is due primarily to good water, but we claim more for Was-Cott. We claim all the goodness of imported ales, of flavor and carbonating qualities—the refreshing goodness as a beverage and we claim and stand ready to back by an unqualified guarantee to refund your money if you are dissatisfied, that the Pure Was-Cott Mineral Water is infinitely better than that in most ginger ales. Make your own investigation—prove this statement, try Was-Cott.

96 per cent of Was-Cott Ginger Ale is pure mountain mineral spring water from the Was-Cott Spring in a region famous for mineral springs, where within a radius of ten miles there are springs nationally famous as health resorts and where thousands of people congregate every year to restore their health by drinking the pure mineral water. Was-Cott is one of these springs. This sparkling water, analyzing absolutely pure with the Special Was-Cott formula of ginger root, comes from this bubbling crystal mountain spring direct to your table. It is bottled in a sanitary plant pronounced to be O. K. by the Virginia Health Authorities. You can drink all you want of it and every drop will benefit your health.



We make the Unqualified Guarantee that Was-Cott is equal in flavor and carbonating qualities to the best imported ales.

JITNEYS SOLD TO Richmond Street Railway

The skeptic who in the face of the sudden vogue of the jitney bus still is throwing cold water on the enthusiasm of the "jitney buzzer" sees his last defenses fall before the fact that the very interests into whose revenue the humble jitney bus makes the biggest inroads accept the bus as an inevitable addition to our modern transportation methods.

Thus the Virginia Railway and Power Company of Richmond, Virginia through its general manager, C. E. Buchanan, instead of combatting the jitney craze, as some still persist in calling the new movement, ordered one hundred Briscoe cars, the first eighteen of which were shipped April 12th, and will be in the jitney service of Richmond. The cars are standard in every way and each will carry four passengers in addition to the driver.

Horace DeLisser, vice president and general manager of the Briscoe Motor Company, who concluded the deal with the Virginia street car concern, says that these Briscoe cars will operate under a guarantee that their gasoline consumption will not exceed a gallon for every 25 miles travel. This, according to DeLisser is not a a difficult thing, because one of the strongest selling points of the Briscoe is the unusual fuel economy of its French motor.

The Virginia Street Railway Company will build garages for the maintenance of the one hundred Briscoes and it is certain that the first hundred will be followed by other cars in the very near future.

SUNDAY, MAY 2, 1915.

Keep busy. Busy-ness means business.

What can we do for Wilmington? Let's find it out and do it.

Some men stick to their friends till finally they stick their friends.

It's curious that a business man has to depend upon a lawyer for advice.

What he does gives a man reputation, but the public he does gives him fits.

Some folks "talk Wilmington" for the purpose of talking something out of it.

An American's idea of neutrality is to sell both his friends a knife so they can rip each other up the back.

Merchants' Journal and Commerce says: "Never suspect that you are slighted." Why not laugh at the idea that anybody could slight you?

If Americans did not differ about what it requires to constitute a great man, lots of little men in this country would not have had the chance of being considered big.

Even a mollycoddle can call Jess Willard a liar and yet Jess would have to take it, because it would be impossible for him to find out who it was that "sassed" him over the telephone.

"American women lead the world," says Madame LeRoux, of Paris. Of course, some old grouch will make an effort to inform the complimentary Parisienne that they lead this part of it by the nose.

A political boss who pulls the wires for Roosevelt is Dr. Jekyl, but when he pulls against the Colonel he is simply Mr. Hyde, liable to climb up on the porch at any time and steal your jewelry off the dresser.

Those who wish to speak authoritatively should know what they are talking about and be able to justify the words they speak. Former Secretary of the Navy Meyer was merely shooting off his mouth when he declared that Secretary Daniels is individually responsible for the loss of the submarine F-4. When a man "talks like a teapot," he can hardly expect reasonable people to regard his statements as the least credible.

When the war broke out in Europe President Wilson begged Americans to observe the spirit as well as the letter of neutrality. Americans totally ignored his timely injunction. Only a few days ago he again pointed out the difficulties of maintaining even the semblance of neutrality, and again reminded the press and the people that their attitude now should be "America first." The President's advice several months ago was timely, but in the latter instance it is too late. This country's hand has been shown and there isn't any use of slipping it back under the table.

The gullibility of the American people is still counted on by special interests. They own and control a great many newspapers, but they are especially fond of running magazines. We heard a young man recently declare that he depended on the magazines for his views of public questions. That is what the special interests knew that a lot of people would do, so they went into the magazine business. The young man who made the remark had three special interest magazines in his pocket at the time and was totally unaware of their insidious ownership.

Admiral Peary's suggestion that the United States ought to gobble up all of America will make Canada laugh. Admiral Peary's North Pole limelight was getting dim and he had to do something along visionary lines to be different from the average American's idea that the chief thing for the United States to do is to attend to its own business in accordance with the advice of George Washington. Admiral Peary's suggestion is about like his discovery of the North Pole—a matter of momentary interest rather than of any intrinsic national value.

THROUGH WATER RATES FOR FAYETTEVILLE.

Commercial and trade advantages and possibilities for Fayetteville are already materializing on account of the canalization of the Cape Fear river from that inland city to the deep-water ocean channel at Wilmington. One of the notable results antedating the early completion of the canalization project is that arrangements have been made with the ocean steamship lines running to Wilmington to put on through water rates from New York and Baltimore to Fayetteville. The chamber of commerce of that city makes this announcement in the Fayetteville Observer of Friday:

"We have recently had communication with the Baltimore & Carolina Steamship Company, Baltimore, and the Clyde Steamship Company, New York, relative to through bills of lading on shipments from Baltimore and other Eastern cities to Fayetteville via Wilmington and up Cape Fear river. Both of these companies assure us that they will co-operate with any reliable steamboat company that we might organize, in making shipments direct to Fayetteville on through bills of lading."

The Star anticipated that Fayetteville would be able to secure through water traffic arrangements by reason of the fact that at the lowest stages of the Cape Fear the channel will have a depth of eight feet at the shallowest stretches of the waterway. That uniform depth of channel will be maintained at all seasons of the year by the locks and dams constructed by the government to obviate the difficulty heretofore experienced at two shoal sections of the river. Of course, there will be high water stages when the channel will be much deeper, even deep enough at flood stages for any of the New York steamers to make the trip all the way to the upper Cape Fear metropolis.

However, the river craft will take care of the traffic between Wilmington and Fayetteville, while the through traffic from New York and Baltimore will transfer at Wilmington for the canalized waterway. Even so, many classes of light-draft steamers and yachts from New York or any ocean port can make the run all the way to Fayetteville. Barges of large tonnage can tow from New York to Fayetteville, and, as a matter of fact, the possibilities of water traffic over the improved waterway will hardly be known till Fayetteville begins to do the water traffic that is in store for her. The Fayetteville Observer anticipates these possibilities, for in commending the through water arrangement effected by the chamber of commerce, our esteemed contemporary says:

"We take it of course that this movement is predicated on the early completion of the canalization of Cape Fear river, whereby a minimum depth of eight feet of water between Fayetteville and Wilmington will be secured. Here we have a forecast of the great benefit to Fayetteville and the whole State which will result from canalization. The Chamber of Commerce acted wisely in this matter, for ther by it showed to outside capital that Fayetteville is alive to the great advantages which will soon be offered by the canalization of the river. By this prompt action in advance outside capital has already seen that Fayetteville is awake, and that capital will, therefore, come into our midst and do greater and bigger things than mere co-operation in handling through bills of lading."

All of that and more too will come within the scope of Fayetteville's new dream. There will be greatly increased potentiality in Fayetteville's transportation facilities by water and rail. Fayetteville's advantages as a distributing point will be materially magnified and her dream can assume iridescent proportions, if Fayetteville's business men will make them come true by their initiative and enterprise.

It is beyond question that Fayetteville will become an important interior distributing point. Seeing the inevitable in that respect, the enterprising management of the Newbern Iron Works & Supply Company will establish a branch house in Fayetteville, so as to distribute foundry and machine products from there into several counties.

THE CARTER-ABERNETHY AFFAIR

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, we presume that about everybody connected with or vitally interested in the investigation of Judge Frank Carter's private and official conduct have been satisfied, so far as it lay in the power of the legislative commission to give satisfaction, by its findings and recommendations as filed with Governor Craig Friday afternoon as reported in The Star yesterday morning. We should think that the only parties, excepting possibly Judge Carter himself, who will not be satisfied with the commission's report are those who were bent upon having the judge impeached.

The commission did all that it had the power to do for Solicitor Abernethy and everybody else, especially all lawyers, who reported that they had been aggrieved by the judge's harshness and arbitrary conduct. Also, it went about as far as it could go in the way of "rubbing it into" Judge Carter without recommending impeachment proceedings. Of course, the commission found no evidence to justify the charges of immoral conduct against the judge and frankly and promptly said so before the investigation was concluded.

However, the commission's findings and recommendations hardly brought surprise to anybody. Its report was about in line with the forecast made in these columns immediately following the conclusion of the taking of evidence in the investigation. Its report was a "composite compromise harmonization" of the views of the seven members of the commission, who differed very widely, it seems, upon various phases of the case when they took up the matter of drafting the report. The report would indicate that there was an effort to satisfy, as far as possible within the realm of consistency and justice, all parties concerned. The commission seems to have resolved itself into somewhat of an arbitration board to the end that peace, harmony and reconciliation might be brought about, so far as possible under the circumstances.

The commission finds that at various times, including the Newbern contempt incident, the judge "acted harshly and arbitrarily, unwisely exercised his judicial discretion, lost his temper and used intemperate language, but at no time acted corruptly." On the other hand, the commission finds that Judge Carter had a serious nervous collapse and breakdown just before he went on the bench and that since then he has had an occasional return of the trouble, to which his harshness and arbitrary conduct are attributed.

As to Solicitor Abernethy, the commission virtually recommends that if there is any constitutional way to accomplish it, the contempt record in the Newbern court be expunged in so far as it reflects upon the official conduct of the solicitor, but does not suggest how this is to be done. Probably Solicitor Abernethy and his friends will find a way.

The net result of the whole unfortunate and regrettable affair, so far as Judge Carter is concerned, is that he will probably be a better judge than he has been heretofore, and, what is more important to him, he is stronger with the people than he ever was before. At least one county recently has made special request to Governor Craig to send Judge Carter to hold a special term of court and since the investigation has been pending the Asheville jurist has been prominently mentioned in connection with the nomination for the governorship. Both of which incidents are straws that indicate which way the breeze is moving.

YOU'RE ANOTHER, SAH!

During the course of his seven days testimony in his own behalf in the Barnes vs. Roosevelt libel case at Syracuse, former President Roosevelt deposed and gave it out as his impression that William Barnes, Jr., had some Dr. Jekyl in him and a considerable preponderance of Mr. Hyde. The Mr. Hyde in his individuality outclassed and out-pointed the Dr. Jekyl, the Colonel would have the jury to believe. On account of his great concern for the better individuality of William, the Colonel let it be known that he tackled him with the hope of aiding the Dr. Jekyl to make the Mr. Hyde take the count. All in vain!

We don't know that Mr. Barnes thought it worth while to deny that he had more or less of two sides to him, but he depended for his vindication upon proving that Colonel Roosevelt was another—more of another than he was. Wherefore, the plaintiff introduced testimony and oral and written evidence tending to show that there was a strenuous Mr. Hyde and a more or less strenuous Dr. Jekyl in the Colonel. The Colonel's own letters were introduced to show how he conferred with and dickered with political leaders and traffickers, who afterwards came under Colonel Roosevelt's condemnation as bosses and several varieties of bad eggs. The Roosevelt letters spoke for themselves and also whispered a sad tale.

The Colonel's whole distinguished career was gone into during the hearing, but "what's that got to do with the fence law?" The question before the jury is not whether Colonel Roosevelt was distinguished and honorable, or whether he was Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde, but whether by impulse or malice he cast imputation upon the character of Mr. Barnes, making charges so serious as to constitute libel and cause humiliation, suffering, anguish and damage to the extent of $50,000. It does not make any difference how distinguished or honorable or clean or well intentioned any man is, if he misrepresents or maligns the humblest man in America, it is for the jury to say so. If, however, the jury believes the Colonel did not hit Barnes a lick amiss, it will find a verdict in favor of the former President. Nevertheless, in acquitting the Colonel it would be equivalent to agreeing with him that Barnes is guilty of everything alleged.

The question at issue simply is one between two men, whether they are both big and great men or whether one is big and the other little. No big man is excusable for scandalizing the humblest man in the land, and no little man is excusable for libeling anybody else. Barnes has had a prominent political career, and if he has done nothing corrupt or contrary to law and decency, he has a right to vindication. However, that is a question for the jury to decide in coming to a conclusion as to the liability of Colonel Roosevelt for hastily or deliberately casting imputations upon a name that is good till the contrary is shown.

The case itself scandalizes the American nation. One of its former Presidents is haled to court and is on trial. If through a lack of dignity and calm judgment he brings reproach on himself, it falls on the country whose chief executive he was. Doubtless, the jury will be more judicious in its verdict than Colonel Roosevelt was in his charges against a fellow Republican.

A business man who has spent some time in Europe says that Americans are accepting European trade, but are not going over and getting it. Well, so far as business is concerned, isn't it just like us to ask the Government to aid us to keep competitors from getting the best of us? The American's main idea of doing business is to do it without being bothered by competition.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Roosevelt may have damaged Barnes, but the general opinion is that Barnes has repaired Roosevelt.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

While boasting that Spartanburg is the most populous county in the Carolinas, does the Spartanburg Herald believe that only a Spartan can live there?—Columbia State.

D. Y. Cooper, of Henderson, proposed as the business man's candidate for Governor, is qualified in every way for the position. We have no idea that Mr. Cooper would consent to enter the contest, but if he should enter, the other candidates would have to worry.—Raleigh Times.

During the past few days we have heard various business men express their opinion on the business situation and in every instance decided improvement was reported. Supply dealers, wholesale grocers, merchants and other classes of business men have felt the impetus of improved cotton prices and conditions today are unquestionably better than they have been at any time since war was declared. Most business men who have studied carefully the general situation express optimism over the outlook. It is a long step from six cent cotton to ten cent cotton and the increased price has had the effect of largely restoring confidence which seemed lost for a period last fall. In this territory marked improvement has been shown in almost every channel of trade. The ranks of the unemployed have been reduced. Mills are making fairly regular time. Building operations are coming back to a normal status and hundreds of men who walked the streets in enforced idleness last fall and winter are finding an opportunity today to earn their bread and meat by work.—Charlotte News.

It is interesting to note the different stages of spring across the State of North Carolina. In the mountains the woods are just now putting out their leaves. In the piedmont section we are well into spring—gardens planted and crops in the ground. In the long leaf section summer is at hand and crops above ground. In Scotland, Robeson and Bladen counties garden truck is knee high, and from Columbus county strawberries are being shipped. In some fields cotton has attained a good stand, ready for the chopper. In other fields corn is almost ready to plow. But the season is late, as it is all over the State, and as was the case last season, the farmers are waiting for rain, having their fields in the meantime in shape to reap the best possible benefit from the rain when it does come. This is particularly true of the cantaloupe and melon fields, of which there is apparently a larger acreage this year than ever. The increase in wheat fields in this section is not so very noticeable. The farmers appear to be sticking fairly well by cotton, but they are going more extensively into truck and grass crops.—Charlotte Observer.

In the appointment of Mr. Henry W. Miller as one of its vice-presidents the Southern Railway Company has rewarded faithful and energetic work done in its behalf, and it will be recognized as an appointment not alone worthily bestowed but fully deserved, a promotion made on merit and service. Entering the service of the Southern Railway in his youth in the office of Col. A. B. Andrews, first vice-president of the company, Mr. Miller threw himself entirely into the work, moving forward in the importance of the positions he held from time to time, until he became assistant to the president of the company, now being advanced to the position of vice-president. Assiduous in his attention to the duties placed upon him, he has been diligent in their performance. Mr. Miller is a native of Raleigh, and there is regret that his apointment, which follows the death of Col. Andrews, is not to make him again a resident of ths city, as his headquarters will be in Atlanta. His services to the Southern Railway have been distinguished by such efficiency, and his capacity is so well known, that there exists among his many friends the fullest confidence that he will achieve even greater sucess in his new position.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Kinston, N. C., May 1.—R. F. Smallwood, a Newbern architect, has been employed to draw the plans for a new dormitory at the Caswell Training School, the State institution for the feeble-minded near here. The contract will probably be awarded in June.

NIELSEN RECITAL ENDS THE CHAUTAUQUA HERE

Famous Prima Donna Captivated Large Audience.

Splendid Programme Rendered Last Evening—Excellent Lecture by Thomas Brooks Fletcher Yesterday Afternoon.

Concluding a week of entertainment unusual for its high class and uniform excellence, probably the most thoroughly enjoyed musical event ever given in this city was the song recital last night by Alice Nielsen, as the closing number of Wilmington's second annual Redpath Chautauqua. The splendid attendance that has marked the Chautauqua throughout held good to the last, and the big tent was crowded to its capacity for the recital. Another large audience heard Thomas Brooks Fletcher yesterday afternoon in a splendid dramatic lecture on "The Martyrdom of Fools."

Supported by Karel Havlicek, violinist, and William Reddick, pianist, Miss Nielsen appeared last night in a programme so varied and well balanced as to cover the entire range of musical tastes. This was her first appearance in Wilmington, and with her superb voice, her pleasing personality and her charming stage presence she completely captivated her audience. Including her enchore numbers, she sang in all about 20 selections, and even then her hearers were inclined to call her back.

Miss Nielsen's programme was divided into three groups, of four selections each, with an aria, "Vissi d'arte," from Puccini's Tosca, with a violin obligato by Mr. Havlicek, as the finale.

Her first group included "The Spirit Flower", by Campbell-Tipton; "Will O' the Wisp," by Spross; "I Came With a Song," by LaForge and "Love Has Wings," by Rogers. The second included "Si Mes Vers Avaient Des Ailes," by Hahn; "Vergebliches Standchen," by Brahms; "L'heure Exquise," by Hahn and "Komm Lass Uns Spielen," by Bleichmann.

For the third group she sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," by Malloy; "The Low Back'd Car," by Lover; "But Lately in the Dance," by Arensky, and "The Year's at Spring," by Beach.

Probably to a limited portion of the audience, the aria from Tosca, sung by Miss Nielsen with the violin obligato by Mr. Havlicek, was the feature of the entire programme, but to the whole audience the songs embraced in the third group were the most enjoyed, and to the insistent applause which followed this group she responded with four encore numbers. In one of these, "The Last Rose of Summer," to many she appeared to the best advantage of the evening, and the applause that followed continued for several minutes.

Among her other encore numbers were "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Genevieve," "Suwanee River," "An Explanation," and several others.

Mr. Hevlicek is one of the best violinists ever heard in Wilmington, and, like Miss Nielsen, he was compelled to respond with repeated encore numbers. His rendition of Schubert's "Wiegenlied," was superb, as was also his interpretation of the "Meditation," from Massenet's Thais.

Mr. Reddick, the accompanist, is also an artist of real merit, and it was a matter of regret to the audience that the programme did not include one or more solos by him.

A Man With a Message.

Thomas Brooks Fletcher, who spoke for more than an hour yesterday afternoon at the Chautauqua, is a man with a message. He speaks with tremendous earnestness and directness and does not even engage in that most pleasing of the arts of the average lecturer on the platform today of patting his audience on the back, so to speak, and telling them that after all what he has to say applies not to them but to the people living in Kalamazoo. He does occasionally resort to these tactics, but always with a burning irony.

He was frequently applauded, though not usually as spontaneously as frequently happens when great truths are driven home. But when he pictured in graphic words Woodrow Wilson as he sat at the White House, loaded down with the cares of the nation, alone with his sorrow after his wife died last fall, there was loud clapping of hands which showed that his hearers appreciate the spirit that is loyal to duty and never flinches no matter how hard the task nor how dark the day.

"The Martyrdom of Fools" was his subject. He divided it into two divisions, the first being the fools—as the world takes them—who are martyred because of what they advocate and fight for, and the second being the men who are martyred by their foolishness. In the first part of his lecture he drove home mighty truths that have to do with government of city, State and nation and in the second he came back to the individual who sins against his home, his mother and his God.

Today men are not burned at the stake or crucified upon a cross, he declared, but instead they have their bread taken away from them. With biting irony he pictured men who are well in body but as he termed it are dead from their chin up. That is amore horrible death, he declared, than to be burned at the stake. He told of how in his own experience he had given up an editorial position on a newspaper because he had dared to expose the wickedness of those "higher up."

He is an intensely dramatic speaker and although suffering with hoarseness yesterday was able to paint scenes with such glowing words that his audience could almost see the incidents he recalled being transacted before their eyes. No man can talk like Fletcher without believing every word that he speaks.

He was heard by a large audience and they remained to the close of the lecture which lasted for a little more than an hour. It was a fitting climax to the splendid addresses and lectures that have been given at the Chautauqua the past week.

Miss Vivian Ditto gave the last lecture to the children at the Bear Memorial school yesterday afternoon on Scandinavian folk tales and dances. These have been largely attended during the week and the children as well as many of the older folks have been greatly delighted with the pleasing stories of primitive folk as told by Miss Ditto.

As Mr. Glenn H. Thomas, who has been the superintendent of the Chautauqua the past week, expressed at Wilmington has the Chautauqua spirit bad. They have it good, too, and there has never been any question in the minds of the thousand or more who have attended with regularity, practically every number on the programme and the five hundred extra ones who could only come occasionally but that the Chautauqua is to be a permanent institution for Wilmington.

On the very first day there was a large crowd and the attendance increased daily. Especially at night has the large tent been crowded with an enthusiastic audience. They were appreciative audiences, too. While the lectures and addreases have been heard with great interest ,one of the most attractive features, not only last night but throughout the week, has been the excellent musical programmes.

As Dr. Barker expressed it last week the Chautauqua is a whole university in itself. It provides every variety of entertainment and all can find something to enjoy.

Mr. Thomas, the superintendent, and his assistants, leave this morning for Monroe, N. C., where a Chautauqua will be in progress this week. The tent will be moved to that place. Mr. Thomas has made a host of friends during his stay in the city. He is a man of pleasing personality and in addition to this known how to keep in the background. He started all the programmes on time promptly and he didn't waste time making stump speeches from the platform, but always went straight to the point. He is an ideal Chautauqua superintendent.

COTTON ACREAGE IS REDUCED

That there will be a reduction of about one-fifth in cotton acreage and of 40 per cent. in fertilizer tonnage is indicated by the inforamtion received from a careful canvass of the Wilmington section which has been made the past week by Mr. A. S. Peatross, local manager of the Mercantile Agency of R. G. Dun & Co. The information contained in the report of Mr. Peatross, whi ch has been forwarded to the New York office is based upon letters received from prominent business men and farmers throughout this section.

This report will be of particular interest to business men and farmers. Following is a copy of the report:

"Information received from a vanvass in this section, indicates a reduction of about 20 per cent. in the acreage as compared with 1914.

"The fertilizer reduction will amount to nearly 40 per cent. in tonnage, with perhaps an average grade of 10 per cent. under last year's analysis.

"There have been practically no mules bought this year, while purchases in implements have been unusually light, not over 33 1-3 per cent. for the same period of 1914.

"Weather conditions have on the whole been fairly favorable, planting being in some sections somewhat further advanced than in previous years, while in others, it has been slightly delayed, fertilizers and other materials not being received promptly.

"Labor is plentiful, caused by the cotton reduction, and farm labor can be obtained plentifully at a reduction of 25 per cent to 30 per cent. of its cost a year ago.

"In some sections, old cotton has been moving quite freely for the past month, though there is apparently, quite a supply still on hand, perhaps 50 per cent. more than last year, this being held largely in warehouses.

"This section is apparently practicing rigid economy in an effort to produce a cheap crop; also showing a tendency to diversify their crop."

LOCAL BAND TO GIVE CONCERTS AT THE BEACH

First Dance of Season Will Take Place Next Saturday Night.

As a pleasant surprise to the pleasure loving public of Wilmington will come the announcements that a local band composed exclusively of Wilmington members will make its debut next Saturday night, May 8, at Lumina, Wrightsville Beach, for a pre-season week-end dance. The orchestra is composed of Messrs. K. Schmidt, Henri Georges, C. S. Grainger, Jr., A. R. Viner, J. A. Lewis, E. C. Bagwell, C. W. Hollowbush, R. H. Morris, C. H. West, G. W. Viner, J. A. Fettel, George Johnson, Green Fenley, Jr., and F. W. Dock.

Many members of the band are professional musicians and they will render all the latest dance hits of the 1915 season. Snappy band music at Lumina is something rather novel. There will doubtless be a large number of people who will take advantage of this opportunity to attend a dance early in the season. The regular season at the beach will open June 5 when in addition to the band there will be an orchestra.

On Sunday afternoon, May 9, the band will give a concert at Lumina. In addition to the concert programme by the band there will be three selections by the Arion quartette which is also composed of local talent.

Music by local musicians at Lumina, is an innovation that will meet with popular approval. The band has been rehearsing for several weeks and will be able to play the latest selections.

BICYCLE SOLD TOO CHEAP

LeRoy Shepard, Colored Youth, Given Six Months on County Roads.

LeRoy Shepard, a colored boy, offered to sell a bicycle for $2 but the intending purchaser thought it was too cheap and upon investigation it was found that it had been stolen. The boy was tried before the Recorder yesterday morning on a charge of larceny and given six months on the county roads. He was also charged with stealing another bicycle, but this case was dismissed.

At the request of the State, the cases against Ben Morriss and Clarence Hewlett, who are charged with robbing Polvogt's store several weeks ago was continued until Monday. The bond of $150 cash for the young men was continued until Monday. Elijah Herring, colored, was fined $10 and the costs on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon several days ago.

Already 187 officers, chairman, and delegates have signified their intention of attending the convention, which will make it by far the largest meeting in the history of the federation. Ten years ago the third annual meeting of the organization was held in Goldsboro. At that time we thought we were having a large assemblage with 30 guests. These figures alone show the large and rapid growth of the federation.

It is with great pride that we shall welcome these visitors from all parts of the State to Goldsboro. It is with pride that we shall usher them to our newly decorated club home for the directors meeting and the conferences, that we shall conduct them to our handsome Court House for business sessions, that we shall take them to our skyscraper for our social entertainments in the evening, and that we shall point out the beauties of our town as we drive along its streets to the park, Wednesday afternoon May 5. In return we hope to reap rich returns from this visit of organized club women. We shall learn many things concerning the care of our families, our town, and our vicinity. We shall learn the best way to make our surroundings and our lives beautiful and healthy and serviceable. For the keynote of the federation in all its work is service.

To all visitors to Goldsboro the whole town of Goldsboro bids a hearty welcome. We hope you will come in time for the first meeting and stay through the last. We have an open town—open to our federation guests with a large, all-embracing hospitality.

The last general meeting will take place Friday morning. That afternoon the directors will hold a meeting. At this time there will be an opportunity for the other visitors—not directors—to visit the Caswell Training school. Mr. C. B. McNairy, the superintendent of this school for the feeble-minded, extends a cordial invitation to all members of the Federation to visit this institution. There is a train leaving Goldsboro about 3 o'clock in the afternoon and returning at 8:30 in the evening. Those wishing to make this trip will have a chance to go in a party, and should sign up to show their intention at an early session of the convention. A slip of paper will be circulated for this purpose. In the meantime the delegates can be considering the plan.

Programmes have gone to press for the department conferences on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. They promise to be most interesting. The difficulty will be in choosing which of the two attractions to attend. In any case the delegates can make no mistake—all will be well worth while and helpful to club women. The programmes consist principally of discussions of subjects relating to department work, which will be led by members of the convention and joined by any interested member of the conference.

The banquet on Thursday night is a feature that the Goldsboro women are looking to with especial pleasure. It is the form of entertainment that seems to belong exclusively to Goldsboro, for there has never been a federation banquet since the last meeting in Goldsboro ten years ago. That was considered a mighty big affair, with about 90 women present. The prospect for this year's banquet is for about 285 women. There will be toasts, of course, but these we can't divulge now—you'll have to come and hear them yourself.

We hope you will come. We shall meet you at the Union station. Don't disappoint us.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Mr. J. H. Johnston was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Kelly on a charge of embezzlement and was recognized by Justice Harriss for his appearance next Saturday. The charges were made with reference to a consignment of goods to Mr. Johnston.

OVER 300 PEOPLE ASSISTED

Travelers' Aid Continues Its Fine Work at the Union Station—Donations Are Welcome.

The past week has seen a continuation of the splendid work that has been carried on at the Union station by the Travelers' Aid organization. The records of the Travelers' Aid show that over 300 people have been assisted by the agents of the Aid during the past month.

In most cases such assistance has been confined to giving information about respectable boarding houses to women and girls; directing several to the Y. W. C. A. and in giving general information about the city to strangers. However, other services still more important have been rendered in a number of instances.

The Western Union has opened a branch office which is in charge of the Travelers' Aid at the station, and this is proving quite a convenience to travelers. The telephone booths recently installed are also located close beside the Travelers' Aid desk, and already a number of calls have been made by the agents for people who did not understand the use of the telephone.

Instances of assistance rendered women and girls coming in on night trains, or leaving on early morning ones, and to sick people needing attention are quite numerous.

One young lady got on the wrong train by mistake, and was sent back on a freight train. The Travelers' Aid was notified, met her and as she was a stranger in the city, saw that she had a comfortable place for the night and sent her out next morning.

A lady was severely hurt at a nearby town by falling from the platform. When she arrived a doctor was summoney, she was cared for by the Travelers' Aid that night and put on her train the next day.

Several cases needing financial aid, as well as other services, have been covered the past month.

There is no emergency fund in the Travelers' Aid treasury, and the committee in charge would greatly appreciate any donations interested friends would care to make. There are a number of contributors who make regular monthly payments, but any contribution will be welcome and those in touch with the work feel that it ranks in merit with any work now being done in Wilmington.

Some very pathetic and needy cases have been looked after, and it is doubtful if the majority of Wilmingtonians vere realize that such situations ever arise here, while the expressions of gratitude and approval from people who understand how to travel but sometimes need competent assistance, makes the work seem worth while from every standpoint.

BIJOU THEATRE ADDS FEATURES TO THEIR PICTURE PROGRAM

Will Show "World" Features and Add United Service to Program.

The Bijou Theatre makes two announcements in today's Star that should be interesting to their many patrons. One is announcing the booking of the great feature photoplays of the World Film Corporation, including the productions of Messrs. The most interesting part of this announcement is the fact that these features, for the first time, will be put on at the regular five cents admission charge. Tomorrow, for the first feature, will be presented "The Dollar Mark", George Broadhurst's Broadway success, in five acts, featuring Robert Warwick.

Another advertisement announces the booking by the Bijou of the exclusive film service of the United Film Service, supplemental to the Universal, and featuring such stars as George and Dolly Larkin, Edna Payne, Nobert Myles, Stuart Holmes, Ethel Grandin, Edwin August, Edythe Sterling, Dot Farley, Charlie DeForrest, Pauline Bush, Murdock MacQuarrie, and many others. With these acquisitions the Bijou lays claim to the distinction of having the largest program ever booked into a Wilmington theatre, from which to make their selections daily, a total of over 50 reels per week.

BRITISH STEAMER WENT AGROUND OFF OCEAN BAR

Floated at High Tide Last Night—Cargo of Nitrates.

The British steamer Hartington, with a cargo of nitrates from the west coast of South Africa, which went aground yesterday morning off the Cape Fear bar, floated last night at 8 o'clock on high tide and came into Southport. The vessel which is consigned to Heide & Co., agents, will come to Wilmington today and will discharge her cargo at the Wilmington Compress & Warehouse Company terminals. She has a cargo of about 5,000 tons of nitrate of soda and came from Chili. The cargo is for Wessel-Duval & Co. and W. R. Grace & Co., of New York, and will be distributed here.

The vessel went aground in the heavy fog yesterday morning. The news of her grounding was sent to Wilmington and several tugs including the Caster and the Gladiator went to render assistance. The coast guard cutter Seminole started to her assistance yesterday afternoon but it was not necessary for her to assist in floating the Hartington.

The Olus advertising is appearing in the Star's advertising columns from day to day and will be read with interest. The garments are for both men and women and attractive window displays, billboard posters, etc., give an idea of the extent of the campaign just launched here.

A snappy aggregation of ball players congregated at Winter Park yesterday afternoon. The opposing teams being Winter Park and Seagate. Winter Park defeated Seagate 6 to 3. Maulsby and Hall each made a three-base hit for Winter Park. The game was featured by the fast fielding of both teams. Batteries for Winter Park: Page, Hatchell and Hart; Seagate: Smith and Miller. This was the first game of the season at Winter Park, and the prospects are for some real good sport this season. There were about 100 spectators at the game yesterday.

ELABORATE LUNCHEON IN HONOR MRS. WILLIAMS AND MRS. LITTLE

Mount Olive, N. C., May 1.—In honor of Mrs. Marshall Williams, of Faison, former president of the North Carolina division, United States of the Confederacy, and Mrs. Eugene Little, of Wadesboro, now president of the division, Mrs. M. Thompson Brezealle gave a most beautifully appointed seven-course luncheon at high noon last Saturday.

The home was lovely with flowers and ferns and the furnishings were enhanced by the galaxy of beautiful paintings which greeted the eye at every turn, these being work of the gifted hostess. The dining room was an artistic ideal, with its floral decorations and handsome mahogany furnishings. Covers of rich cherry adorned the broad table in the center of which stood an exquisite vase of Easter lilies, mounted on a mirrored plateau, which reflected their beauty. The little place cards, done in water colors, were in the same design and colors.

Other honored guests, who with Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Little, enjoyed Mrs. Brezealle's hospitality, were Mrs. Witherington, of Faison; Mrs. Faison Pierce, of Warsaw; Mrs. Thomas McGee, of Goldsboro; Mrs. F. R. Mintz, of Mount Olive, and Mrs. E. N. Ricks, president of the Confederate Grays chapter, of Mount Olive.

On the day of the Thirteenth district meeting of the U. D. C. no function was more enjoyed than this given by Mrs. Brezealle, in honor of two of the State's most distinguished Daughters.

BEAUTIFUL CHURCH WEDDING AT IVANHOE THURSDAY

Ivanhoe, May 1.—Historic Black River Presbyterian church was the scene of a wedding of much interest to friends throughout the State Thursday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock when Miss Mary Jane Corbett, daughter of Mr. James Nicholson Corbett, became the bride of Mr. Cornelius C. Murphy, of Greensboro. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Murphy Williams, of Greensboro.

The ushers were Messrs. Charles Corbett, Robert Beatty, Henry Beatty and P. O. Brown.

The maid of honor was Miss Margaret Cronly Corbett, sister of the bride. The dame of honor was Mrs. Norman Herring. The bridesmaids were Miss Virginia Powers, Wallace; Miss Eunice Whitted, Elizabethtown, and Miss Edna Robinson, Ivanhoe. The best man was Dr. J. Gerald Murphy, of Wilmington.

The groomsmen were: Dr. Henry L. Sloan, of Lincolnton; Mr. C. DeVane Murphy, Atkinson, and Mr. A. J. Vidal, Gainesville, Fla. The ringbearer was Master Leon Corbett, nephew of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

While the church was being filled with friends from all the surrounding country, selections were beautifully rendered by Miss Norma Black, of Atkinson. The wedding marches were played by Miss Lily MacDuffie, of Ivanhoe.

The church, which is one of the oldest and most beautiful country churches in Eastern North Carolina, was attractively decorated. Twenty-nine candles, denoting the wedding date, gleamed from among the bamboos and pines upon the ensemble, the whole making a lovely picture.

The large number of guests from far and near, many handsome gifts and messages of congratulations from a distance were proofs of the affection and esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

The home of the bride, near Ivanhoe, was the scene of royal Southern hospitality, where a hundred guests were entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy left on the northbound train for Washington, New York and other points of interest.

Guests from a distance, other than members of bridal party, included Miss Katie McLaurin, Miss Mary Belle Taylor, Mrs. L. J. Merriman and Miss Eleanor Jordan, Wilmington; Mrs. B. V. Wright, Coharie; Dr. John B. Murphy, Raleigh; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Murphy, Greensboro; Mr. Paul Murphy, Lanville; Mrs. M. Moore and Miss Maggie J. Murphy, Burgaw.

Miss Edna and Frances Robinson entertained at their elegant home, near Ivanhoe, the Thursday previous in honor of the bride.

Both bride and groom have hosts of friends who will extend sincere, good wishes.

MANY BERRIES BEING SHIPPED

Movement from Chadbourn Section Started Yesterday in Lively Fashion—Rain Helps Greatly.

The strawberry movement from the Chadbourn section started in earnest yesterday and 16 refrigerator cars were loaded at Loris, Tabor, Wattsville and Chadbourn. The estimated movement from that section this week is 175 cars and it is expected that it will reach its height next week. A good rain Friday night helped prospects greatly. The prices range around $4 to $5 a crate and are considered good.

The movement is a little late this year, owing to the prolonged cold weather of the late spring. The yield will be nearly normal, however, in spite of the unfavorable conditions that growers have had to face in the way of low temperatures, snow, frosts and a drought.

Six cars of lettuce are to be loaded in the Wilmington section tomorrow. Lettuce has been moving for several days, but the biggest movement is expected this week, the field plants just now being ready for shipping. The dry weather has been a serious obstacle and there is little prospect of rain today, says Observer Felger.

The hardiness of the plants, however, has kept them from suffering as seriously as would otherwise have been the case had it not been for the cold weather in March and the early part of April.

Sixteen years ago I was taken sick with Kidney trouble and suffered terribly for three months. I did not work during this time and was mostly confined to the bed. After using other remedies I finally tried a bottle of Swamp-Root. I immediately began to feel better, and after using seven fifty-cent bottles, was entirely cured and have had no Kidney trouble since. I can truly say that I owe my good health to Swamp-Root. Would YOU be a FAMOUS BEAUTY also? You can if you wish.

Nimon del Enclos, one of the most beautiful women in the world, a century or more ago, had a most remarkably creamy, soft, delicate complexion, that of an infant, up to the day of her death, and she lived beyond NINETY.

This famous beauty's exquisite complexion was, no doubt, due to a great extent to the Toilet Lotion she was accustomed to use, made out of Rose Water Benzoin and other ingredients good for the complexion.

We have scientifically combined these ingredients under the trade name of "Ninon Toilet Cream" at 25c and 50c per bottle.

A trial will make you use it to the exclusion of all other toilet creams. "LOCUST BUD" Sachet Powder. The sweetest, daintiest, most elusive Sachet on the market. PREPARATIONS FOR LARGE CONFERENCE

Nations of Western Hemispheres Send Representatives

TO WASHINGTON IN MAY

Plans Rapidly Being Perfected for Meeting of Pan-American Financial Conference for Better Trade Relations.

Washington, May 1.—Plans are rapidly being perfected for the Pan-American financial conference called by Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, to be held in this city beginning May 24. Participation of 18 Latin-American countries already is assured. In addition to distinguished foreign delegates, representative bankers and financiers of the United States will take part in deliberations on existing financial conditions throughout the Western Hemisphere which, it is expected, will lead to adoption of measures for closer business and banking relationship of American nations and advancement of financial welfare of all of them.

Officials and civilian financiers from South and Central American countries are to be the guests of the United States at the conference and up to this time delegates from 13 countries have been appointed. The list of representative bankers and financiers who will represent the United States has not been completed but Secretary McAdoo plans to have the personnel of the home delegation in hand within a short time. Representatives of big commercial as well as the banking interests of the country are to be urged to participate in the conference.

Delegations already appointed from South and Central American nations include the following:

Argentine: Samuel Hale Pearson, of Buenos Ayres, prominent banker and business man of the Argentine Republic, a grandson of Samuel B. Hale, of Boston, who founded in 1838 the Buenos Ayres firm which Mr. Pearson now heads; Richard C. Aldao, corporation lawyer and formerly minister of finance of the province of Buenos Ayres; V. Villamil and John E. Zimmerman, business men of Argentina. The Argentine delegation already has sailed for the United States.

Brazil: Dr. Amare Cavalcanti, formerly judge of the Supreme Court of Brazil and an authority on financial and commercial affairs of that republic.

Bolivia: Adolfo Ballican, consul general in New York and Ignacio Calderon, Bolivian minister at Washington.

Chile: Luis Izquierdo, former minister of foreign affairs; Auguste Villanueva, director general of the Bank of Chile, and Luis Aldunate, banker and business man of the republic.

Columbia: Roberto Ancizar, secretary of the Colombian legation, and Santiago Perez Triana, Colombian banker, and formerly minister to Great Britain.

Costa Rica: Mariano Guardia, minister of finance, and John M. Keith, banker.

Dominican republic: Francisco J. Peynado, former minister to the United States, and Dr. Enrique Jiminez, present minister to this country.

Nicaragua: Frederick Albert Straus, banker; and Pedro Rafael Cuadra, former minister of finance.

Panama: Aristides Arjorna, secretary of finance and treasury; Ramon F. Acevedo, manager of National Bank of Panama, and Ramon Arias, Jr., vice president of the Bank of the Canal Zone.

Paraguay: Dr. Ayala, minister of finance.

Salvador: Alfonso Quinones, vice president and formerly president of Salvador; Jose Suay, sub-treasury of finance and former minister of finance, and Roberto Aquilar, banker.

Uruguay: Pedro Cosio, minister of finance; Dr. Gabriel Terra, member of the chamber of deputies and formerly minister of industries.

Venezuela: Pedro Fafael Rincones, consul-general at Ne wYork.

Guatemala, Hondura, Ecuador and Cuba have accepted invitations to the conference and announcement of their official delegations is expected in the near future. Ambassadors and ministers in Washington from the various countries will also act as ex-officio members of the congress.

Official call for the conference was based upon a provision of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill passed by the last congress, as follows:

"The President is hereby authorized to extend to the governments of Central and South America an invitation to be represented by their ministers of finance and leading bankers, not exceeding three in number in each case, to attend a conference with the Secretary of the Treasury in the city of Washington at such date as shall be determined by the President, with a view of establishing closer and more satisfactory financial relations between their countries and the United States of America, and authority is hereby given to the Secretary of the Treasury to invite, in his discretion, representative bankers of the United States to participate in the said conference, and, for the purpose of meeting such actual and necessary expenses as may be incidental to the meeting of said conference and for the entertainment of the conferees the sum of $50,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury."

Allied with the subject of financial betterment of nations participating which will be sought by the conference there will be considered also the subject of improvement of general conditions and facilities of commerce, trade and transportation. New conditions of financial and commercial relations between the United States and other American nations have been brought about by the war and these conditions, it is urged by those interested in the conference and its promoters, make it necessary that there shall be an adjustment upon a basis that will safeguard all nations concerned against embarrassments and depression incident to the general upheaval of commercial conditions.

Sessions of the congress will be held in the Pan-American Union building, in this city, and, besides United States delegates soon to be named, this government will be represented by President Wilson and members of the Cabinet, members of the Federal Reserve Board and John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union.

PYTHIAN BANQUET AT CLINTON.

On Occasion of Third District Convention—Col. Walker Taylor Speaks.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Clinton, N. C., May 1.—The members of Clinton lodge, Knights of Pythias, tendered a banquet to a large number of visiting Pythians on the evening of April 28th, the occasion being the Third District convention. The banquet tables were set in the Sampson Light Infantry armory, and at them were seated the city's finest citizenship and fairest ladies.

The affair was one of the most elaborate social functions ever given in Clinton. The menu was in extreme good taste, and during the evening music was furnished by Blackburn's orchestra, of Goldsboro. The banquet hall was a scene of beauty, being made so by colored crepe paper, potted plants and colored electric lights.

The banquet followed the business meeting of the convention, which was held in the splendidly equipped castle hall of the local lodge. There were present a large number of prominent fraternity men, some of whom were accompanied by their wives.

The well arranged programme consisted in part as follows: Toastmaster, Henry A. Grady; Address of Welcome, Col. Geo. L. Peterson; Response, Mr. M. T. Breazeale, of Mt. Olive; Address, "Why I Am a Pythian," Col. Walker Taylor, of Wilmington; Address, "Damon and Pythias," Rev. A. O. Moore, of Warsaw; Address, "Clinton Lodge No. 201," Mr. Theodore Partrick, Jr.; Address, "The Fraternity Spirit," Mr. L. A. Bethune; Address, "The Spirit of Knighthood," Major C. M. Faircloth; Address, "Our Pythian Home," Mr. C. W. Fender, of Clayton; Impromptu responses were made by Messrs. W. W. Willson, of Raleigh; C. E. Weatherby, of Faison.

"BROUGHT TO TRIAL"

Hon. J. Frank Hanley to Prosecute in Moot Case at Chicago.

The trial of John Barleycorn, to be held in Chicago, October, 1915, will be a unique setting forth of the temperance reform situation and, according to Daniel A. Poling, temperance secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society, will be of as much value to this reform as was "The World in Chicago" to its missions.

This trial will follow as closely as possible correct legal procedure. The Hon. J. Frank Hanley has been retained to prosecute the case. An honored judge will preside over the court; some of the most prominent men and women of the country will give their testimony. Barleycorn himself will be defended by two distinguished liquor advocates. At the close of the trial the court record will be bound into a book by the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

We are losing too many schoolhouses by fire. During the extreme cold weather in last February an average of one fire a day occurred in the schoolhouses of Illinois. Investigation showed that these fires were caused by overheated furnaces or stoves, the teachers in many cases filling up the stoves at night so as to keep the building warm. Defective flues and overheated stoves did the rest.

SMALL FARMS AT $190 AN ACRE

Remarkable Sale of Real Estate in Wilson County.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., May 1.—What is believed to have been the most remarkable real estate auction sale, of farm lands, was held Friday near Kenly, when the John Q. Boyette farm, consisting of over 60 acres, was divided into small tracts of from 6 to 12 acres and sold for $11,911.25—an average of $190.55 per acre. This farm is two miles from Kenly and the tracts were all purchased by local people. The price at which the land sold is good evidence of the return of better business conditions in this section.

Special Fitting of GOSSARD CORSETS,

At the Store of the C. W. Polvogt & Co. for Two Weeks Beginning Tomorrow.

Through a special arrangement with the H. W. Gossard Company, of Chicago, we have engaged Miss Ethel M. Christy of their organization to assist our corsetiere in a special demonstration of Gossard Corsets.

The radical change in styles this season from the slinker slouch to the erect, well-poised, somewhat military form, calls for consideration, care and attention in the fitting of your new corset.

There is a decided tendency toward the adoption of a smaller waist this season and a fitted bodice, with a return to the full skirt of former periods. All of this has a direct bearing on your corset. Authentic information regarding these new styles is yours for the asking during this demonstration.

You can come and be fitted to any of the newer models and make your selections at a later date, if you so desire. Whether you expect to purchase your corset at this time or not, we suggest that you arrange to attend his demonstration.

While the original front-lacing Gossard Corsets sold at $25 some ten years ago, increased manufacturing facilities and an international distribution have reduced the price until now you can purchase a Gossard Corset for as little as $5, $3.50 and $2.

It will be a privilege to serve you and to have you visit our Corset Department some time during this demonstration.

What Cures Eczema?

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription, can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription.

WOMEN OF RUSSIA

By SASHA KROPOTKIN

MME. IDA RUBENSTEIN, THE FAMOUS RUSSIAN ACTRESS.
© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

RUSSIAN PEASANT WOMAN.
© UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

THIS YOUNG RUSSIAN WOMAN WAS BORN IN ONE OF THE POOREST PROVINCES OF THE TSAR'S DOMAIN. SHE CAME TO AMERICA IN STEERAGE AT THE AGE OF TWO YEARS, ALTHOUGH ONLY 24 YEARS OLD SHE HAS COMPLETED A HIGH SCHOOL COURSE, WORKED AS A STENOGRAPHER, STUDIED LAW AND HAS BEEN ADMITTED TO THE BAR. SHE IS NOW ASSOCIATE EDITOR OF A LEADING AMERICAN MAGAZINE.

AT an early age the Russian girl is acknowledged as an individual. No one in the family circle dares to suggest that her personality and its claims are of less importance than that of her brother. Her parents often err on the side of exaggerated respect of her freedom. But somehow this freedom is very rarely abused. Perhaps she is too serious and too taken up with mapping out her "career" to be injured by it.

Nearly every Russian girl "does" something after her education is finished, and the something almost always means serious work and not amusement or sport.

Two of the most charming women of my acquaintance were allowed the most unlimited freedom in their earliest years. Their parents allowed these two girls, fifteen and sixteen years old, to take a villa in the Crimea and to spend the summer there, while they themselves went to Kissingen. The girls had a "chaperon"—a cousin, aged eighteen! These young women spent their days bathing and boating and making jam. But they also put in some hard work, the two younger ones passing a stiff examination on their return to Petrograd in the autumn.

These privileges of freedom seem to date from a very distant period, for we find a young princess in the twelfth century defying her parents and refusing all her tutors—and this at the mature age of twelve. This princess—Evrosinia of Polotsk—then retired to a convent and, desiring to found a library, she began to buy and to copy various books. Then she founded a convent of her own, where she taught the nuns to read and to write. Later she also founded a monastery, and for forty years she ruled both institutions with great success.

The spirit of independence and the pursuit of a personal ideal which drove the young Princess Evrosinia to leave her home still lives in Russia. To-day one can find scores of young girls, often of rich families, leaving distant homes, even against the wishes of their parents, and coming to the university towns to study. They live mostly alone or two or three together, very modestly, sharing what they have with other students. They will pawn or sell their last bit of jewelry to pay for some poorer friend's fees—or perhaps dinners.

In every university town there are special restaurants for students. These are run on unique lines. A great deal of the work is voluntary, and the food is extremely cheap owing to this and to the donations of people interested in the concern. The hard work, cooking, &c., is, of course, ordinary paid labor, but often the waiting is done by the students themselves, and the entire clerical and organizing work is undertaken by the women students and various women who form a committee.

One of the first steps taken by the public in Russia after the declaration of the war was the announcement that in such restaurants free meals would be served to the entire families of those students who had gone to serve their country.

The Russian woman has perhaps greater opportunities than any other woman of showing her powers of organization.

Every country suffers periodically from some national disaster, but Russia has almost continual disasters in the form of famines and cholera—the latter scourge being practically annual.

The women play a most important part in the actual work of relief in both cases. The work during a famine is heartrending but comparatively simple, though there is often disease to be fought at the same time. But to work in a cholera stricken district is more than heartrending. It is dangerous in the extreme. The lack of proper hospitals, the insanitary conditions in the villages, the inadequate and uncomfortable housing of the doctors and nurses combine to make the work ghastly. It requires real heroism to volunteer for such work. Yet you will find women of all classes flocking to the stricken district, nursing the sick and caring for the children, themselves worn out, hollow eyed and often hungry, working till they drop.

Between 1897 and 1900, when there were a series of terrible famines, this society spent more than 7,000,000 roubles (about £70,000) for relief, and another 7,000,000 in medical aid, and yet their capital not only remained untouched but was increased, so numerous were the donations received.

The Russian Red Cross was, by the way, founded by two women, Mme. Sabinina and Baroness Fredericks, the latter also a Russian, though bearing a German name.

There are innumerable young women who are already veterans in this kind of relief work, and who with such training are likely to be of the greatest service when they undertake real Red Cross work.

There are numbers of other societies also founded by women, and working more or less on the same lines as the Red Cross. They all have permanent hospitals and staffs, and attached to them are convalescent homes, almshouses and often schools.

The best known of these societies is the one founded by Princess Shahovsky. Four sisters of this society, with the founder herself, went through the war in Servia in 1876. During the Russo-Turkish war there were already 118 of them caring for the wounded. And since then in every war in which Russia has taken part and in most of the big epidemics there have been sisters of this society. Many of them have received medals for their "valuable help and heroic self-sacrifice." There is, unfortunately, not space enough to do more than mention the wonderful and far-reaching work of the "Society of Fraternal Help," founded by Princess N. Troubetzsky, sister of Princess Shahovsky.

The idea of having a "flower" day to benefit such institutions is a very familiar one in Russia. There, as here, the idea originated with a woman. Every possible flower has its day. Marguerites are sold for funds for consumptives; lilies of the valley for children's crèches and homes; the wheat ear for the famine funds and so on. Recently a flag day was inaugurated and £20,000 was raised. This sum is destined for the first member of the Russian army who enters Berlin.

During a war more than at any other time the general efficiency of the women plays an important part in the success of their country. This is especially so where there is conscription, for it is inevitable that life should become dislocated when all or most of the men are withdrawn from it. In Russia women fill so many posts which in other countries are the privilege of men that they are still there to carry on the work when the men are gone—and in any case they are willing to take up a variety of occupations from which they are barred at ordinary times. It is true that they are welcomed and are given all kinds of jobs. Women act as clerks in banks and they occupy every kind of position in the municipal organization, even in times of peace. In certain villages they are occasionally elected as "desiatski"—that is, a kind of policeman—among whose duties is that of collecting the young men whose time has come to serve in the army.

During the Napoleonic wars there was even a woman "starosta" (elder of a village). Nastasia—that was her name—led her villagers, armed with scythes and pitchforks, against the French invaders and took a great number of prisoners.

The Cossack women for many years fought side by side with their men, going into battle armed with anything they could lay hands on. This tradition—for it became a tradition that the women should take an active part in any battle—seems to have originated in 1774, when the Cossack town of Nasur was being besieged by the Tartars. The Cossack women helped by pouring not only boiling water and tar on the besiegers, but also the soup which they were cooking. Finally they became so bellicose that they sallied forth from the town dressed in their best red sarafans, armed and angry; and attacked the Tartars with great success.

And the Russian peasant women of to-day seem capable of living up to these traditions. Only a few days ago, when a German aeroplane fell in a village near the frontier, the women who were bringing in the harvest rushed to the spot and smashed the machine, belaboring the two aviators with their fists and hay forks. They overcame them, although the Germans endeavored to defend themselves with revolvers, and held them until some soldiers arrived and rescued the prisoners.

The women are ready, however, to show their energy in more peaceful ways as well, and we hear they are conducting almost the entire tram and postal service in both the capitals.

THEATRICAL

Rita Jolivet, the inimitable international French and English dramatic star, makes her screen debut in Jesse L. Lasky's picturization of Eleanor M. Ingram's remarkable romance, "The Unafraid," which is to be the offering at the Victoria on Monday. Associated with Miss Jolivet, and featured in the leading role, will be Mr. House Peters, the famous romantic actor who has gained nation-wide fame since his first appearance under the management of Mr. Lasky and David Belasco in "The Gild of the Golden West."

"The Unafraid" is a powerful drama of love and political intrigue. The major portion of the action takes place in the mountains of little Montenegro, that brave little nation which the Dual Empire, unable to conquer by arms, is trying to take possession of through intrigue. The dissolute young Count Michael Balaic is the traitor whom the agent of the Dual Empire bribes to instigate revolution in Montenegro. Michael wastes all the money he has been provided with for this purpose and then seeks to save himself by marrying an American heiress.

Mr. Theodore Roberts appears as the evil genius and he is without doubt the most, deliciously nefarious plotter on the screen or stage today.

The Paramount quartette opened Saturday as an added attraction, to this week's bill and made good on their first appearance. Their voices blend beautifully and their selections were well chosen and highly pleasing.

At the Grand This Week.

William S. Hart, the "Two Gun Man" is doing the leading part in the two-reel Broncho "The Grudge." A sick youth calls the bandit a cheap bully. The bandit makes the proposition to restore him for the insult. The boy's fight him for the insult. The boy's sister arrives and a Mexican lover complicates things and two terrible fights are caused and they are real fights especially the last in which the bandit kills the Mexican. It is a strong and interesting production beautifully photographed and dramatically produced.

A "Beauty" production "The Constable's Daughter," with Fred Gamble and Virginia Kirtley in the cast and a Lubin comedy, "It Happened on Wash Day," furnish plenty of comedy and the programme closes with a dramatic Biograph, "The Sheriff's Dilemma" making a programme that will please the most exacting.

First "World" Feature at Bijou.

A thrilling picture from the first moment to the last is the Robert Warwick picture of "The Dollar Mark," in five acts, to be presented at the Bijou tomorrow, and critical reviewers who have seen the play are agreed that it is one of the finest examples of what native producers can do. It's a big story of modern capital and its domineering ways, wonderfully brought out, and is brimful of the spirit of the times, because it reflects the business world, and wherever it has been shown it has been greeted with applause of a most discriminating sort.

The virility that made the stage play so successful has been carried over into the screen presentation, and with Robert Warwick playing the same role which he created in this thrilling play in 1914, screen patrons are assured one feature in which there is no attempt to "pad."

Among the most fascinating moments ever spent before a picture are those in which one sees the bursting of the dam, the flooding of the mine and the final plunge of Jim Gresham and Alice Chandler over the edge of the dam into the swollen river. Miss Tennant, who supports Robert Warwick has had a varied experience in pictures, and plays the role of Alice Chandler in a manner that set all New York to cheering for her.

The Bijou will present a World feature photoplay every Monday, and to demonstrate that "it can be done" they will be presented at the regular admission price, thus, again taking the initiative in Wilmington "movie" circles, and setting a new precedent in value giving to the motion picture-goers of the city.

INVESTIGATION COST STATE ABOUT $2,500

Report Blanks Mailed Out to 4,000 Corporations.

General Reassessment of Property Throughout State Begins—Conferences at County Seats Monday.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., May 1.—Representative J. C. M. Vann, of Monroe, member of the legislative committee that has just filed its report with Governor Craig on the investigation of the Abernathy-Carter contempt case, remained over in Raleigh today to round up the business end of the investigation in the matter of mailing out the pay warrants for the 150 and more witnesses who appeared before the committee to testify.

While the figures have not been totaled up yet, it is understood that the investigation has cost the State about $2,500, more than $1,000 having been required to pay the per diem and mileage of the witnesses.

The Corporation Commission mailed out today to t he four thousand and more corporations in every part of the State the official blanks on which they are required, during the month of May to make report as to capital stock, surplus, dividends, earnings and other features of their business, as a basis on which the commission will assess their 1915 taxes.

The general reassessment of real and personal property by county assessors and township list takers began in every county of the State today under the new Revenue and Machinery acts and under the general supervision of the State Tax Commission, this work to continue throughout May and well into June, the listing being as of property on hand May 1.

Monday at each county seat there will be conferences of the list takers with the county assessors for the reaching of a general understanding as to the work ahead of the taxing authorities.

Fire soon after midnight did three thousand dollars' damage to the garage and automobile repair shop of R. Y. McAden on Salisbury street and for a while threatened to spread to the adjacent business houses of one of the principal business blocks on Fayetteville street.

H. C. BEST WINS ANNUAL DEBATE.

And Is Awarded Set of Shakespeare, Given by Mr. J. H. Southgate.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Trinity College, N. C., May 1.—The handsome set of Shakespeare's complete works offered each year by Hon. James H. Southgate to the winner in the annual sophomore debate was won last night by H. C. Best, of this city. The debate was held before a large audience in Craven Memorial hall.

The query discussed last night was the ship purchase bill, which was only recently before Congress.

CAMPAIGN IN RALEIGH AT FISTICUFF STAGE

Lively Scrap Pulled Off on the Street Yesterday.

Indications Are That Present Commissioners Will be Re-Elected Tomorrow Despite Strenuous Efforts of Opposition.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., May 1.—The first big fisticuff election in connection with the recent municipal primary and the election to be pulled off Monday took place at 6 o'clock this evening on Fayetteville street and attracted hundreds of people. R. L. Lumsden, well known detective, and Engineer George W. Steele, of the Seaboard Air Line, were the participants and both were right badly battered.

Lumsden accused Steele of having voted twice for the present commissioners in the primary. After they had been separated once, Steele made a second attack that was more sensational than the first, in which several others joined as resenting what they charged was unfair advantage of Lumsden, who was knocked down, his nose broken and other injuries sustained as a result of the two engagements.

This was the last "campaigning day" before the municipal election and there is more than ever indication that the present city commissioners will go in with large majorities. A mass meeting of that element of the citizenship opposed to the present commission last night discussed the situation to a late hour and about the biggest outcome was a declaration that there have been placed in the hands of the foreman of the Wake county grand jury a lot of affidavits as to election frauds alleged to have been perpetrated in the municipal primary and that the plan is to have a lot of prosecutions that will, however, be pulled off after the election, if at all.

In the morning paper the opposition to the commissioners published a number of affidavits and statements of fraudulent voting in the primary and then in the afternoon paper these were about all denied and others shown to have been committed by persons understood to be supporting the opposition.

SHIPS FROM THE LAKES

Surplus Vessels Are Put Into the Atlantic Trade.

(From the New York Evening Post.)

A fresh index of the adaptability of commerce to changed conditions is the reported stripping of the Great Lakes of their surplus vessels for the Atlantic trade. The Welland Canal admits the passage only of vessels of 14 feet draft; yet already a fleet of Canadian freighters has been transferred down the St. Lawrence, and more from both sides are following.

HIGH SCHOOL CAMPAIGN IN LUMBERTON WARMING

Rain Beginning to be Badly Needed in Robeson.

Citizen Proposes to Raise Bid on Electric Plant—Attorney General in Town—Never so Many Chickens—Automobiles.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., May 1.—Another enthusiastic meeting was held by advocates of the proposed high school last night in the court house, and it seems to be the general opinion that the proposition is gaining strength every day, though some of the leading people are opposing it.

Superintendent Sentelle, of the graded school, and Mr. Frank Gough went to East Lumberton Thursday night to try to enlighten the people on the subject, and were met by a large crowd anxious to hear the merits of the proposed school discussed. They say they were not allowed to enter the school auditorium, nor were they allowed to have a light on the school house porch. Most of their talking was done by moonlight. Both gentlemen say that while those who were present to hear the question discussed acted nicely, the treatment they received from one "higher up" could have been more pleasant.

Another week of dry warm weather is causing rain to be badly needed in this section to bring up cotton and corn and enable the farmers to transplant tobacco. Both cotton and corn are up in some places, but in many places the ground is too dry for seed to sprout.

Electric Light Election.

An election is advertised to be held here on Tuesday, May 11, to decide whether or not the town will sell its electric light plant to the Yadkin Power Company for $15,000. The Star correspondent is authorized by a Lumberton gentleman who does things without making much noise to say that he will raise the bid $5,000. In other words, he will pay $20,000 for the plant and put up the cash in 36 hours. It will be no trouble to learn who he is.

The town primary which was held here Tuesday of this week was not only a record breaker in the number of votes cast, but was one of the quietest ever seen here. There was no sign of any drinking and not an unpleasant word that the writer heard of. Hard work was done on both sides, but so far as is known everything was done decently and in order. Those who wanted the Legislature to enact a law giving the voters the privilege of voting for the chief of police same as the mayor and commissioners got what they wanted and found out that a large majority were ready to endorse Chief Redfern when it was shown that he received nearly three-fourths of the votes cast, although he had four opponents. Lumberton is proud of her recorder, mayor and chief of police.

Attorney General Bickett spent a short time here Wednesday evening passing through on the return to Raleigh from Orrum, where he was the speaker at the closing exercises of the Orrum High School.

Messrs. J. A. Green, Jr., of the News and Observer; Lacy McKenzie and S. L. Martin, students of pharmacy in Raleigh, came over yesterday afternoon in an automobile. Mr. Green returned this morning, but Messrs. McKenzie and Martin will spend Sunday here.

Stores to Close at 6 P. M.

Beginning Monday, most of the business houses will close at 6 P. M., except on Saturdays. The barber shops will not close until 7 o'clock. Unless there is a change in the weather before Monday, Superintendent Pitman intends to turn on the current at 12 o'clock, noon, in order that those using fans may have the benefit while the weather is hot.

Rev. Thomas E. Wytche was a Lumberton visitor first of the week. "Tom" and the writer were pals 35 years ago, but had not seen each other since 1878. The pleasure at meeting again after so many years was indescribable.

The Star man enjoyed a ride of several miles in the country this week, and among the many interesting things he saw was the greatest number of young chickens he has ever seen. At every farm house he passed large broods were to be seen, and upon inquiry he was told that the hawks, which in years past were very bad, have about disappeared and are giving little trouble now.

An automobile dealer stated last night that during the past ten days his firm had sold ten machines. That will give some idea of what is doing in these parts in the automobile business.

There will be a slight change in the schedule of train No. 13 on the Seaboard Monday, by which it will arrive here at 6:55 P. M., instead of 7 o'clock as at present.

The Seaboard has cut out the town water from the passenger station and gets its supply from its own tank which is only a short distance away from the building. Unless there is improvement in the waterworks in the station, the pump will have to be kept running pretty regularly.

Mr. W. P. McAllister went to Richmond last night to accompany Mrs. McAllister home from that city where she has been taking treatment for a few days.

The condition of Mrs. Emily McLeod, who has been in bad health for some time, is such as to cause the family and friends much anxiety.

To show whether or not it pays to keep a town clean, there is not, in the sections where the writer has been, anything like the usual number of flies, and what are here are having a hard time of it, as the merchants, especially the grocers, keep them out with screen doors.

The tax listers of the county met here yesterday for instructions as to the duties they are to perform. It is said that a more competent set of men have never been selected than those who were appointed to do the work this year.

Mrs. G. B. McLeod and daughter, Miss Irene, left this week for Baltimore to spend several days.

General Passenger Agent Parker, of the V. & C. S., is spending today in Norfolk. He will spend tomorrow in Baltimore, returning here Monday.

While in conversation with The Star correspondent this week, Dr. B. W. Page, county physician, said that if there was a case of typhoid fever in the county he did not know of it. Dr. Page said that at the present time the most serious proposition is pellagra, which seems to be on the increase rather than decrease.

Ground was broken this week for enlarging and remodeling the Pastime theatre, next to the postoffice. W.S.W.

DEPUTY S. L. BAUCOM KILLED.

Hamlet, N. C., May 1.—Acting on information that the parties who had stolen the automobile of T. L. Brower, of Wagram, were on their way in this direction, Chief of Police Braswell, of Hamlet, with a posse on Thursday afternoon found the automobile hidden in a swamp about one mile south of Hamlet. The car was brought to Hamlet and the search continued for the criminals.

Thursday night the posse, joined by Sheriff Baldwin, of Richmond county, and Deputy Sheriffs S. L. Baucon and M. J. Brown located three men supposed to have been the thieves at a small railroad station named Tower, 12 miles north of Hamlet. They were waiting to catch the through Seaboard train which passed about midnight. Just as the train was slowing up at the station the three came out from hiding and some one in the posse fired on them and the shots, instead of striking the criminals, struck Deputy Sheriff Baucom, killing him almost instantly. In the excitement following the shooting of the deputy the hunted men made good their escape.

The men for whom the posse was searching are the same ones which recently broke jail at Fayetteville and the automobile located at Hamlet was the last one of three which were stolen.

REV. T. E. RICE DEAD.

Pastor of Farmville Methodist Church Passes Away.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., May 1.—Rev. T. E. Rice, pastor of the Farmville Methodist church, died Thursday afternoon after a short illness. The funeral service was held Friday, Rev. M. Bradshaw, of Wilson, officiating. Mr. Rice was greatly beloved in Farmville and his sudden death is universally regretted. He leaves a wife and four children.

"Fire Trap Hotel" is the name the Chicago News says ought to be employed to describe certain lodging houses in the United States. That designation would protect persons from danger, and the Chicago paper urges municipalities to shift the burden of fire responsibility to the shoulders of lodging house and cheap hotel proprietors by enacting proper ordinances and seeing that they are enforced. Until that is done municipal authorities are directly responsible for the loss of life. In the event of failure to obey the law promptly, the violator should have the odium of "fire-trap" placed in front of his place.

"THE INCOMPARABLE MOVIES"

The Bijou begs to announce the acquisition to their program of "The Incomparable Movies" the exclusive releases of

THE UNITED FILM SERVICE

A film producing company that within the short space of two months has covered the whole of the United States and England, and is pronounced by critics second only to the great UNIVERSAL PROGRAM, releasing single and double reel dramas and comedies; a company which has as its motto the claim that there is no good reason why pictures of one and two reels cannot be as perfectly produced as the great five and six reel features now being shown.

"UNITED"---"UNIVERSAL"---UNRIVALLED

We have booked this complete service to go alongside the great UNIVERSAL FEATURE SERVICE which we are now showing, in order that we might have a wider field from which to choose ONLY THE VERY BEST pictures for each day's show. This means that we will pay for a lot of pictures which we cannot show, but it will also mean that we will know at all times that the reputation that we have built up in Wilmington for "THE INCOMPARABLE MOVIES" will be in no danger of being sacrificed, and will place us in a still better position to carry out our ambition to give our patrons THE MOST OF THE BEST FOR THE LEAST.

The UNITED PROGRAM will feature the following stars and brands of pictures, and when you see one of these brands, tell us just what you think of it.

IDEAL—Clara Barton, George Larkin, Dolly Larkin, Edna Payne, Nobert Myles.

REGENT—Irene Tam, Lois Davis, Edith Haller, Stuart Holmes, Jack Hopkins.

LARIANT—George Gebhardt, Josephine West, William Mong.

LUNA (Comedy)—Dot Farley, Raymond Zell, Winnie Brown.

STARLINGHT (Comedy)—James Aubrey, William Kendig.

SUPERBA (Comedy)—Charlie DeForrest, Joe Burke, Susan Willis, W. E. Browning, Rolanda Bambridge, Edith Thornton.

UNITED—Murdock MacQuarrie, Pauline Bush, Della Connor.

ALSO THE "CAMEO" AND "EMPRESS" COMEDIES.

Greatest in Quality! Greatest in Quanity!

The acquisition of the UNITED SERVICE gives the Bijou Theatre the GREATEST PROGRAM OF PICTURES from which to select the daily bills EVER BOOKED INTO A WILMINGTON THEATRE—over fifty reels per week!

WOOD-WASTE EXCHANGE.

Manufacturers Decrease Costs and Increase Profits by Utilizing Scrap.

The latest business-aid service instituted by the government is a wood-waste exchange. It enables lumbermen and manufacturers in the various wood-using industries to utilise each other's waste to mutual advantage, aiming to effect a large saving in forest material as well as in money.

The wood-waste exchange is being conducted by the forest service of the Department of Agriculture. More than forty manufacturers of wooden articles already have asked to be listed as having certain kinds of waste wood for sale, or as desiring to obtain their raw material in the rough or in semi-finished form from mill or factory waste.

Twice a month the exchange sends out a circular headed "Opportunities to Buy Waste," containing the names and addresses of factories having waste wood for sale, with exact information as to species, sizes, forms and quantities. Similarly, another circular, headed: "Opportunities to Sell Waste," gives the specific requirements of wood-using plants which desire to buy waste material.

One of the first waste problems solved has been that of a furniture maker in Michigan who wrote to the forest service asking how to dispose of sugar maple blocks and sticks which were cut off in the process of furniture making, and which he had to sell merely as fuel. Samples were obtained from him and the forest service then located a scrubbing brush manufacturer who used small maple blocks for brush backs. The result was that the furniture maker was enabled to sell his waste at a much higher price than it had brought as firewood, while the brush maker was enabled to buy brush back material in suitable sizes at a much lower figure than it had been costing him to buy maple lumber and cut it up.

Firms which have been put into touch with each other through the exchange are expected to notify the forest service when their requirements have been met. Then their names are removed from the lists. In this way several concerns which early took advantage of the plan have dropped off the lists; but as more and more manufacturers learn of the wood-waste exchange, the lists are steadily growing.

A Chicago officer, according to the Illinois Fire Insurance Bulletin, arrested a suspicious looking person and found on him a plumber's blow torch, two small cans of kerosene, a small can of gasoline, and in his vest pocket an insurance policy for $1,000. The man's excuse for having these articles in his possession was that he was preparing to rid some old beds in his home of prowlers. He took out the policy, he said, to guard against accidents while exterminating the bedbugs. The judge turned him loose.

BACK OF BILLY SUNDAY

By JOHN REED,
In Metropolitan Magazine.

How is it that Billy Sunday, who pledged 40,000 men to vote against liquor in the next election, can receive a eulogy from Mr. Walter M. Finley, the Camden saloon-keeper and vice-president of the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' Association? Why is it that the members of the Penrose machine, who are tied up with the liquor interests of the State of Pennsylvania, support Billy Sunday when he preaches his blasting sermon on "Booze?" "Too many men in Congress owe their election to the liquor interests," cries Billy. "Wherever I can I shall fight every man who wears the brewery collar."

But Billy Sunday is tactful. When he preaches against booze, he preaches against drinking, and not against politicians. He advises the people to vote for local option, which is just what the Penrose machine advises them to do. When he inveighs against graft, corruption and the evils of enormous wealth, he nullifies the lesson by something like this:

"I have nothing to say against the rich man. Solomon was worth about three billions of dollars if you reckon his wealth according to our standard of gold and silver. He could have hired Andrew Carnegie to black his boots, or Rockefeller to hitch up his horses, or J. Pierpont Morgan to dust his clothes and cut the lawn.

"But there's a lot of good-for-nothing lobsters think they are called by God to go up and down the country harping for a limitation of wealth and cussing and damning the rich man for every dollar he has, while they sit around and cuss and damn and never work.

"If you want to use your genius and ability to get all you can, and use the surplus over your own needs for the good of humanity, I hope you all will be millionaires."

In the same breath he curses child-labor and striking workingmen, the greed of the rich men and the envy of poor men. But he mentions no names.

God and $50,000.00.

In the morning we went back to the house on Spring Garden street, and Ma Sunday came down to where we sat in the parlor. She looked at us suspiciously.

"You are magazine boys, aren't you?" she said. "Well, what do you want?"

We wanted to get acquainted with him and ask him a few questions.

"What kind of questions?"

"Well, I don't know; about himself; about his work."

"Well, you can't get him today," said Ma; "he's busy all morning with delegations of ministers from Buffalo, and Richmond, Va., and Boston, and other places—all those cities want to get him there. And then this afternoon, after the sermon, he goes to bed and rests until the evening talk."

"Well, can't we talk with you, then, for a little while?"

She hesitated, scrutinizing us sharply with her alert brown eyes— a good-looking woman of middle age, handsomely dressed, of quick, certain movements, and an air of thorough practicability.

"I can give you boys five minutes," she said suddenly. "Come on into the dining room, where we can talk alone. Now fire them at me. What do you want to know?" She nodded, seating herself.

As we talked she made nervous, swift movements with her hands, picking up things and slamming them down.

"I am very curious," I said, "to know what it is that induces Mr. Sunday to come to a city."

"Well, in the first place, the Citizens' Campaign Committee must guarantee the expenses of the campaign—in Philadelphia $50,000——"

"I mean the spiritual reason," I said.

She picked up my hat, crushed it, and dropped it.

"Are you a Christian man?" she asked suddenly.

"I am not," I responded.

"Then," she said firmly, "I can't discuss those things with you. All I can say is that every one of Mr. Sunday's movements—and mine—are directed by God."

Is Billy Sunday Sincere?

We gathered up Mr. Ackley and went into a front room, where, robed in white pajamas, in the midst of an enormous bed, Billy Sunday lay reading a book by the light of an electric lamp over his shoulder.

"Here's a couple of fellows from a New York magazine," said Ackley. "They wanted to shake hands with you."

Billy lifted his head with the swift movement of a nanimal and looked at us with eyes in which cordiality, appraisal, doubt and fear of ridicule chased themselves like wind on water. The upper part of his face was extraordinarily alive and expressive; his mouth was strong, mobile, enthusiastic —trembling into a kind of embarrassed grin. He looked at Cardiff, and then at Ackley, for an explanation. The gray thin hair on top of his head was almost invisible, making his face seem incredibly boyish—for Billy Sunday is fifty-two. Since the sermon a gray stubble of beard had sprouted on his cheeks and chin, and there were sagging pouches of flesh and tired lines at the corners of his mouth.

"I'm glad to see you, boys," he said, smiling a little doubtfully. "What can I do for you?"

"We sat next to you in the tabernacle today, Mr. Sunday," we told him, "and heard you speak. But we just thought we would come in and shake hands with you. We wanted to see what kind of a guy you really were."

With a delighted smile he dropped the book and thrust out both hands.

"Well, now," he said heartily, "I like that. I'm real glad you came. Sit right down."

His eyes and face were full of easy, childlike enthusiasm. He discovered that I had just come back from Europe.

"Say," he said, in wide-eyed admiration, "there's too many bullets flying around over there for me. A fellow's got to have a good deal of courage to go over there now, hasn't he?"

We asked him what he thought of the war, and his eyes filled suddenly with tears.

"I think it's the most horrible, awful thing in the whole world," he said earnestly. He was proceeding, but there was a swift rustle of skirts behind us, and the nervous voice of Ma Sunday snapped:

"You villains! Didn't I tell you you couldn't see Billy? What have they been doing, Billy—pumping you?"

She went over to him, pulled up the covers, lifted his head, and turned over the pillow for him.

"Not a pump," laughed Billy; "they're just good-natured human beings come to shake hands with me."

Is Billy Sunday sincere? I think he is. I have seen him absolutely dominate two audiences of twenty thousand people in one day, and I do not believe he could put the fire and passion and enthusiasm into his words and actions if he were not sincere. He is generous, even reckless, with his money—he seems to have no idea of its value. Everyone who talks with him loves him. As to the social economic and political relations of the world about him, I think he is just ignorant, that's all.

BIBLES WANTED.

Patients at the State Sanatorium Need Bibles and Books.

(State Board of Health.)

"How's your Sunday school getting along?" an official at the State Sanatorium for the Treatment of Tuberculosis was asked a few days ago.

"Oh, fine," he replied; "we have more interest shown and a better attendance according to our population than you folks have at home." Continuing, he explained that every Sunday afternoon, after the rest period, the convalescing patients assemble in the main lobby of the Sanatorium, where one of their number, usually a minister or former Sunday school worker, leads in the study of the lesson or in such other devotional exercises as may seem appropriate.

"How about your Sunday school equipment?" he was asked.

"Well, you see, it really doesn't take very much," he replied. "A generous friend gave the Institution an organ some time ago. What we need most now is about 75 Bibles."

In this connection he stated that nearly all the patients read quite a bit, for inasmuch as the rest cure requires that they spend a great portion of their time in bed and sitting around, a great many improve their time by reading. Already friends of the institution have contributed various books to the extent of about three hundred. The patients read these at the rate of fifty or more a week. Bibles, New Testaments, books, magazines, magazine subscriptions, song books and a subscription for seventy-five to one hundred Sunday school lesson leaflets or quarterlies would be of much value to the patients who are there waging the battle of life and death with the Grim White Plague. Such books or literature, if sent by parcel post to the State Sanatorium, at Sanatorium, N. C., will receive a hearty welcome by the patients.

GERMANS TO LOSE WEIGHT

Danish Doctor Believes They Will Be the Better for It.

(From the London Guobe.)

According to a Danish doctor, who has worked out his calculations with a thoroughness that must be the envy of his Teutonic colleagues, the average German will lose weight to the extent of 45 pounds in one year if he has to put up with the official food rations. The doctor concludes that this method of dieting must be dangerous to health, since the average person cannot afford to lose so much weight without the most serious consequences ensuing. We imagine, on the contrary, that there are a good many sedentary, middle-aged Germans of both sexes who will find themselves all the better in health for a course of enforced "Banting."

Firemen in many cities are required to inspect business houses at least twice a year. This gives the firemen knowledge of the interior, causes him to warn the occupant and to see that proper conditions are maintained. Where prevention is practiced, firemen have more time for this sort of thing. In North Carolina quarterly inspection is required in the fire district and an annual inspection of all premises in the city or town.

EX-CONGRESSMAN F. A. WOODARD CRITICALLY ILL AT WILSON

Entire Community is Very Anxious About His Condition.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., May 1.—Frederick Augustus Woodard, greatly beloved, honored citizen, former congressman, ex-member of the State Legislature, active in religious, commercial and professional life, one of the leading attorneys of this section, is seriously ill at his home in this city. For several days his condition has been critical but this morning he appears to have rallied and is a little brighter. Unable to speak, and close to the end, he is still able to recognize his friends and members of the family. The entire community is in deep anxiety.

Time was when smoking in the country was infrequent, but in these days of high prices and automobiles thousands of farmers enjoy pipes and cigars and their help use cigarettes. In the olden days there was little danger from fires on this account, but there is danger today. The owner of a farm would not think of lighting his pipe in the barn, but his hands will. Farmers should carry insurance, but they should see to it that buildings are not burned. In very few cases does the policy really cover the actual loss to the insured.

EX-GOVERNOR T. J. JARVIS IS VERY SERIOUSLY ILL.

In His 80th Year, But Has Unusual Vitality for His Age.

Greenville, N. C., May 1.—Ex-Governor Thomas J. Jarvis is very seriously ill, having been confined to his home since Monday. He is suffering from a catarrhal condition of his stomach and liver. His condition now is not so good as yesterday. ExGovernor Jarvis is in his 80th year, but has unusual vitality for his years, and his friends are very hopeful that he may recover. He has suffered similar attacks in late years.

HERE'S PROOF

A Wilmington Citizen Tells of His Experience.

You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt Wilmington endorsement?

Read it:

D. Benton, grocer, Fourth and Nun Sts., Wilmington, says: "Kidney trouble began after an attack of typhoid fever. The first I noticed was a dull, constant ache across my kidneys and it prevented me from getting any rest day or night. My kidneys were so congested that the kidney secretions were very scanty and burned in passage. When I got up in the morning, I felt so tired and lame that I could hardly dress myself. The least exertion played me out. My head ached and my eyes caused me a great deal of trouble. I was often so dizzy that I couldn't stand without taking hold of something to keep me from falling. I lost weight and was a physical wreck from head to feet. I tried everything, but nothing helped me and I was given up to die. Finally, I used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Hall's Drug Store, and they permanently cured me. I am a strong, healthy man today and my kidneys are in good condition."

Price 50c., at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Benton had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Co-operative Tire

Goodyear has always built co-operative tires. Every saving has gone to the user. The more men bought the better we built them, and the lower we sold them.

That is why Goodyear has held top place, outselling any other tire.

3 Reductions

Note that in two years we made three big price reductions. The last—on February 1st—brought the total to 45 per cent.

Yet in costly ways these tires have been bettered. In not one iota were they ever skimped.

Our Fortified Tire is still "On-Air" cured to save blow-outs. Yet that one extra costs us $450,000 yearly.

It still has our No-Rim-Cut feature. It has in each base 126 braided piano wires to make the tire secure. It embodies hundreds of rubber rivets, formed to combat loose treads.

Our All-Weather tread is still double-thick. It still has the sharp, tough, resistless grips.

Those extras—all exclusive to Goodyear—are all retained, despite our price reductions. And we still spend $100,000 yearly to discover new ways to better them

Your Ally

In all these ways, Goodyear is your ally. You do injustice to yourself when you fail to secure this advantage. Never in tire history was such value given as you get in Goodyear tires today.

No smaller makers can ever give so much.

Any dealer will supply you. [2327]

WITH THE MAN IN THE STREET

A Study on the Street—It was mid-afternoon and the rays of a summer sun arrived too soon beat mercilessly down on the pavements of Front street and were thrown back against the walls of the buildings along each side in shimmering waves of heat.

People—those whose business required activity—moved about listlessly; others lolled languidly under the shade afforded by the awnings and longed for the breath of a cooling breeze.

'Twas then he came, and the glory of a mighty pride was reflected on his black features. Aye, he was black, even to that shade that blends into blue, and from which no amount of soap and water will erase the shine.

An odd figure he made as he marched so pridefully down the sun-stricken street, and he attracted the attention of all who saw. Aye, and he gloried in this attention, not realizing, perhaps, that amusement rather than admiration, directed the glances that came his way.

He wore a rusty gray frock coat, with the skirts flapping several inches below his knees, and the gods of chance and the rag-bag had willed his trousers black—also several inches short. His collar was respectably white—at least it appeared so in contrast to the ebony countenance above; its height held his chin high in the air and imperilled the lobes of his ears every time he turned his head. His shoes were fairly new and in good condition, save for a yawning slash across one side—a slash that robbed a restless bunion of some of its pent-up ache.

But on his head was a high silk hat, comparatively new and brushed until its glittering splendor dazzled the eye. Ah, here was the secret of that prideful carriage. A silk hat, glossy and resplendent. What mattered if his collar was too high, if his tie was red, his coat gray and his trousers black. Here was a silk hat, all his own, and he wore it proudly, and by his demeanor invited all the world to look and see.

Down the street he went, his shoulders erect, his chin in the air, and the stub of a ragged cigar left a trail of smoke that put the tug boats on the river to shame.

Eyes met his and off would come the tall silk hat in a flourishing salute. If he lifted that hat once between Princess and Market street, he lifted it at least 20 times, though he probably did not know more than two or three of those whom he saluted. He was easily the most interesting object on the street, and whether he knew it or not, his self-esteem basked content in the warm glow of a soul-satisfying experience.

Seeing Him Through—We had something to say once before about the dog who adopted a man. That was some months ago, and it has been interesting to watch the development of a unique canine character. For he has developed wonderfully. He is no longer the cringing, apologetic, scraggly little dog that he once was; now he carries himself with the air of a thoroughbred, looks the world in the eye with calm assurance of self-respect and is ready to dispute the right-of-way with anyone or anything transgressing on what he conceives to be his rights. Such is the work of association.

But all that is merely by way of comment on the side. It was one of his adventures that we started out to relate.

Like most dogs, he does not center his love altogether on his master. He is almost as fond of one of his master's friends, and when the master is busy at the store, or elsewhere, the little dog is often to be seen following his friend around the streets.

Some few nights ago this friend was initiated into one of the local fraternal orders. The little dog followed him down town that night and upstairs to the lodge room. Here a heavy door swung shut in his face and he was left on the outside. He settled himself before the door to think the matter over and for a time he was calmly content to ruminate over the mysterious conduct of mankind in general and of men who are friends to dogs in particular.

Probably he would have become sleepy while lost in this contemplation, and curled up contentedly for a nap, while awaiting his friend, had it not been for the fact that strange and boisterous sounds soon issued from behind that closed door. Something was going on inside, and his uneasiness over what might be happening to his friend, coupled with a lively curiousity, moved him to action. He forthwith set up such a howl that for the sake of peace the door was opened and he was admitted to the lodge room.

Doubtless he was much puzzled over the actions of those inside, but he was a most interested spectator, and as the ceremonial advanced he waxed enthusiastic. And as the climax was reached, and the candidates for membership assumed a kneeling attitude, with hands folded across their breasts, he could restrain himself no longer. Trotting out from his corner he took a position alongside the row of kneeling men, and rearing up on his haunches, he lifted his little tan paws in the air in an excellent imitation of his friend. Solemnity settled over his black and tan features—disturbed only by the mingled air of wonder-what-it's-all-about and a faint pride in taking part in so imposing a spectacle.

The quaint picture that he made, sitting there beside the kneeling men, was too much for even the solemnity of the impressive lodge ceremonial, and the roar of laughter that went around the room almost caused the little dog to abandon his picturesque pose. But he didn't. He held it until the oath had been administered, and, if its meaning penetrated his understanding, he probably looks upon himself today as a full-fledged member of the order.

The Orphan's Lot—The literature that moves the world to action is not that written by men of artistic temperament, solely with an eye to creating effect, but that which comes from the heart and reflects the life of the man who wrote it or speaks it as the case may be. The lot of the orphan has been pictured by many an orator in glowing words of eloquence and has been portrayed by writers in words of infinite sadness but nowhere have we seen it told better than by the founder of Trinity College, Braxton Craven. In the current issue of the Trinity Alumni Review appears a sketch of Dr. Craven, himself an orphan, prepared by Dr. E. C. Brooks. In beginning his sketch Dr. Brooks quotes these words as follows:

"In all your ways, let me entreat you to remember the orphan by day and by night; his is a hard, oh, it is a bitter lot! There is much more poetry than truth in the world's pretended kindness to the poor, sorrowful-faced little boy that has no mother to love him and no father to protect him. He is sorely oppressed in his boyhood; he may dig himself in the mountain granite, but orphan haunts him like a midnight ghost. In his manhood, the lingering curse of his sad condition rests upon him. The world has no cavern for him from the opposition. I have seen his tears flow as if the fountains of his soul were broken up, I have seen him bow before God and ask for love to bind up his broken heart, and I have seen the cold combinations of this world grind him to powder. Always, my kind friends, have a kind word for him and treat him as a brother."

As Dr. Brooks aptly says these words, spoken by Braxton Craven in his old age to a group of young men just graduating from Trinity College, contain an epitome of his own life and give the understanding of his unique career. He was born a child of poverty, soon an orphan, homeless and ever friendless and in spite of it all rose to prominence and performed a splendid service to his church and to his State. It was perseverance and indomitable will that enabled to accomplish these things.

In leaving behind these words that come from the heart and soul he left a legacy that will stand through the ages and will help many a man and woman, who feels that his lot is a hard one, to start out with renewed energy to make the best of what may come.

A Common Type—You've all seen him—the typical masher. He stands on a street corner and surveys every woman who passes. He appropriates her glance—and misinterprets her simplest act as an invitation to flirt. Ofttimes he embarrasses her by his impertinent endeavor to become acquainted and occasionally—very occasionally—he becomes embarrassed himself. Yet on he goes, making himself obnoxious and ridiculous without realizing the truth.

He stood at the Southern building. She came from a nearby shop. He looked at her inquisitively; she coyly lowered her eye. So far, so good. But a few yards down Front street she casually glanced backward; instantly he was alert and assuming the "I came—I conquered" air, sauntered in pursuit. She looked again, nonchalantly; his pace quickened. A moment more and he was at her side.

"Are you alone?" he asked eagerly.

Surprise and innocence were on her face.

"Oh, no-o-o," she replied, "I'm down down with my pa-pah. There he comes now!" (Again looking backward.)

He did not wait to see "pa-pah" and he doesn't yet know whether she is cleverly simple or—simply clever. Had he seen the twinkle which lurked in her eye he might have known.

When setting on wood floors, carpets, matting, linoleum, and the like heating stoves and ranges should be protected by one-eighth inch asbestos covered with tin, the protector extended 18 inches or two feet beyond the line of the fire-box or ash-receptacle. There should be an air space of at least four inches betwen the stove or range and the protector.

FARMER IN LIMELIGHT.

Those of U. S. Are Now Feeding 100,000,000 Foreigners.

(Philadelphia Public Ledged.)

When it comes to reserving grandstand seats in the sun, the Kaiser cannot have a monopoly. The American farmer is entitled to a place in the front row.

At the present moment our farmers are feeding 100,000,000 foreigners. They have all other aiders backed off the emergency map by the immensity of their work.

It takes about 1,500,000 bushels of wheat to supply wasteful Americans with their own daily bread. In some recent weeks we have exported just about that much more to frugal Europeans.

An easy sum in arithmetic shows that by the sweat of our farmers' brows last summer 100,000,000 hungry folks beyond the Atlantic are now eating their daily bread. I should say that nearly breaks a record for foreign mission work.

One thousand buildings will be razed in Cleveland, the state fire marshall and the city administration co-operating for that purpose.

Blood Risings Begin A Mere Speck

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

Nearly everyone who uses S. S. S. for the blood recalls a friend who went through untold suffering as the result of a mere pimple or small blood rising. A host of people did not realize, until too late, what may result from a slight skin abrasion. But they recovered if they used S. S. S., and in almost every village and hamlet, every crossroad and away back off the road is someone who will tell you how S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, restored his health.

It is a most interesting fact that this remarkable vegetable medicine overhauls the blood in a manner that excites curious minds.

But it acts in accordance with accepted physiological laws and yet its effect is almost beyond comprehension to those who are wedded to such drugs as mercury, calomel, arsenic, iodide of potash, copper and other baneful influences which all the world bears silent testimony to their destructive tendencies.

S. S. S. is indeed a nature's tribute to what we need and it is worthy of note that in almost any drug store throughout the country you will find it regularly in stock. Get a bottle today. And if you believe yours is a peculiar case, write to the Medical Adviser of The Swift Specific Co., 106 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our word for it, he is one of Georgia's appreciated specialists, retired from active practice, but proud of his name and of his recognized ability.

We Are Going to Move

Sterchi-Bancroft Co.

A WORD OF EXPLANATION:—We are going to move directly across the street from our present location. It was announced during our Auction that the firm of Sterchi-Bancroft-Rich Co., was quitting business. That was correct and honestly given out, and given considerable widespread publicity and especially by some of our friends, the Furniture Dealers, who were pleased to a state of effervescence. In fact, it was, it seemed to them great news of "Glad Tidings." But Mr. Bancroft, of the old firm, never intended to go out of the Furniture Business in Wilmington and, while he does not wish to assume an egotistical manner, it seems to him to be a good town for a good, honest Furniture Store. To this end, a new company, born on the 19th day of March, and composed of Mr. J. G. Sterchi, of Knoxville, Tenn., who is one of the largest, if indeed not the largest, Furniture dealers of the South, and Mr. Edwin Bancroft, who will be the resident partner and who will endeavor to conduct a good, clean, square deal Furniture Emporium. We only ask of the people of Wilmington and vicinity that we be given an opportunity to present our goods and prices.

It's a day of "where price makes the deal," and we base our hopes and expectations on this one thing, coupled with right treatment and truth-telling methods.

We beg to assure you of our earnest efforts and wish to say that from now until moving time prices will be cut to the quick as we have many goods bought and every article will be on sale at a very special pricr

"BRING YOUR OWN BREAD."

Problem That Confronted a Hostess in Germany.

(New York Times.)

The introduction of "bread tickets" in all the communities of Germany and the rigid limitation of bread sales to persons equipped with these non-transferable tickets has given rise to many embarrassing problems. The Hamburger Nachrichten in a recent issue pointed out the case of one housewife who was expecting a woman guest for a visit of five days and who was at a loss as to how the guest could obtain her daily bread while enjoying her hostess' hospitality.

"I could manage somehow if she was to stay but two days," the woman pointed out, "but five days is a very serious matter. Surely my friend cannot bring her five days' supply of bread along with her; aside from the fact that it would grow stale and unpalatable and thereby prove really wasteful, it would make me appear inhospitable if I were to tell her practically, 'Provide your own provisions'."

It must be borne in mind that the bread tickets issued by one community are not good for bread in another; so that the guest could not possibly bring her own ticket with her and hope to get bread through it.

The Hamburger police authorities, when the problem was presented to them, decided that guests could obtain bread tickets limited to the duration of their stay, by presenting themselves at the police station immediately after their arrival instead of reporting their presence only on the 14th day of their stay, as theretofore. The bread tickets so obtained must be surrendered when the guest leaves the city again.

"Bread first!" is thus the slogan of new arrivals in German towns.

Lesson VI.—Second Quarter, For May 9, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xx, 32-42. Memory Verse, 42—Golden Text, Prov. xvii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our lesson topic today is "The Friendship of David and Jonathan," but the lesson verses give only one incident out of many. As our next lesson will be in chapter xxvi, we will consider the David and Jonathan incidents in chapters xviii to xxiii. In chapter xiv the name of Jonathan is mentioned twenty-four times, and in chapter xx it is found twenty-seven times. His name may mean the gift of Jehovah, and he surely was such to David, a real friend and comforter, making us think of Paul's words concerning some of his helpers, "Fellow workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me" (Col. iv, 11). In our first introduction to Jonathan (chapters xiii and xiv), in which we find his name just twenty-eight times, we see him as a brave soldier, relying upon Jehovah to fight for him and with him (xiv, 6, 7). The next mention of him is after David's defeat of Goliath, when we read that his soul was knit with the soul of David, for he loved him as his own soul. He stripped himself of his garments and armor and put them upon David (chapter xviii, 1-4; see also xx, 17; II Sam. i, 26). They were truly kindred spirits, both strong in the Lord. We cannot but think of Him who emptied Himself for us, laid aside all His glory, that He might redeem us, clothe us with His righteousness and share with us His Kingdom. We think also of the disciple whom Jesus loved, who leaned upon his bosom, but we remember what is written in John xiii, 1, of all true disciples, "He loved them unto the end, to the uttermost" (R. V., margin).

The next incident is in chapter xix, 1-7, where Jonathan pleaded with his father for David, reminding him that through David the Lord wrought a great salvation for all Israel, and so David was for a time restored to Saul's favor, but we saw in last lesson how worthless and uncertain it was.

In our lesson chapter we see David returning from Samuel (to whom he had fled) to interview Jonathan and to tell him that when near Saul he felt that there was but a step between him and death and to ask him to find out if he could just how his father really felt toward him, for it would seem as if David could scarcely believe that Saul hated him as greatly as these sudden outbreaks of temper would indicate. One may give way to temper again and again and yet really love the person spoken or acted against. How beautiful was Jonathan's reply to David, "Whatsoever thy soul desireth I will even do it for thee" (xx, 4), or as in the margin, "Say what is thy mind, what thy soul speaketh or thinketh, and I will do it." What a friend to have and yet listen to Him who calls us friends, "If ye shall ask anything in My name I will do it" (John xv, 15; xiv, 14). Jonathan seems not to have believed up to this time that his father meant any real harm to David, probably attributing all to his fearful temper, for he said, "If I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee would not I tell it thee?" (xx, 9.) They went out into the field alone with the Lord and with prayer, and, as in His sight, they made a covenant the one with the other and arranged a plan by which Jonathan would find out certainly what his father's attitude to David really was (xx, 11-23). When the plan was worked out and Saul's anger against David became so manifest that he tried to kill Jonathan for taking David's part, then Jonathan knew that it was determined of his father to slay David. So he arose from the table in fierce anger, for he was grieved for David (xx, 32-34). Then Jonathan in the morning went out into the field and communicated with David by a prearranged plan (xx, 18-24, 35-40).

It was a three days' interval (verse 19), reminding us of so many three days' stories, and it was a morning farewell that these two friends now had (verse 35), reminding us by analogy and contrast of so many morning stories. The statement in verse 39 that the lad who gathered the arrows knew not anything of the significance of his doings nor of the real meaning of Jonathan's words to him has often come to me with power, as I have given His message from His word from time to time, simply knowing that I was seeking to be faithful to him, but not knowing anything of what He might be accomplishing by the message, but sure always that He knew what He was doing and that His word will always accomplish His pleasure (John vi, 6; Isa. lv, 11). How pathetic the farewell of these two after the lad had gone—the kissing, the weeping, the committing of each other to the Lord, and Jonathan's "Go in peace" (verses 41, 42). In the morning to which we look forward we shall be "forever with the Lord" (I Thess. iv, 17). What a contrast to this sad parting and all partings! They met once more, and Jonathan strengthened David in God, and they spoke of the kingdom and renewed their covenant (xxiii, 16-18).

What God does or permits to be done is often to us a great mystery, but there is comfort in His words "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter" (John xiii, 7).

Topic for Sunday, May 2, 1915, "Joys of the Christian Life." I Peter 1.3-12 (Consecration Meeting).

The joys of the Christian life are many and they are pure and strong. Jesus' legacy to His people is a life of joy. He said "These things have I spoken unto you that My joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full."

Joy in Service.

The sweetest of all the joys in life results from service to others. Joy is a reflex of energy, and the soul that does greatest service to others will reap the keenest joy.

Joy in Sacrifice.

The mother who makes large sacrifice for the care and health of her children finds in this her chiefest joy.

Joy in Sorrow.

When sorrow's clouds hang darkest about us, the soul that finds Jesus and follows closely in His footsteps will know something of the overmastering joy that thrills the heart that can say with Paul: "I glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope."

Joy May Be Lost.

David lost the joy of his salvation (not his salvation). The burden of his penitential prayer was, "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation and uphold me with Thy free spirit."

Joy Restored.

When joy has been lost it can be restored. Read all of the 51st Psalm and see how David found it again. Repent, confess, believe, testify.

Illustrations.

There are two roads marked as leading to the City of Joy. The wrong one is Pleasure Street, the right one is Duty Street.

Monotonous life may be like a music student wearily practicing scales, or like a bird, so in love with one strain that he pours it out day after day.

Clerks often try to substitute "something just as good" when customers ask for articles which are not in the store. So the world tries to substitute "something just as good" for the Christian joy; but it never is just as good.

One of Christ's great statements of His mission to the world was that He came that His joy might be in us, and that our joy might be fulfilled, that is, filled full.

The most joyous being that ever walked this earth was Jesus Christ; and we may obtain His joy only by living His life of unselfish service.

Why is the only satisfying joy the joy that Christ gives?

How can we enter into Christ's joy?

Why is the unselfish life the only joyous life?

Quotations.

To be happy is not the purpose of our being but to deserve happiness.—Fichte.

Maker and High Priest,
I ask Thee not my joys to multiply,
Only to make me worthier of the least.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

The Christian life that is joyless is a discredit to God and a disgrace to itself.—Maltbie D. Babcock.

In the deepest night of trouble and sorrow God gives us so much to be thankful for that we need never cease our singing.—Cleridge.

DID YOU?

Did you give him a lift? He is a brother man
And bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue,
And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.

Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road?
Or did you just let him go on with the load?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight,
When a lift just in time set everything right?
Do you know what it means—just a clasp of the hand
When a man has borne about all a man ought to stand?

Did you ask what it was? Why the quivering lip,
Why the half-suppressed sob, the scalding tear drip?
Were you a brother of his when his time came of need?
Did you offer to help him, or didn't you heed.

CALL IN THE HUMORIST

(From the Boston Globe.

Two similar tales from Trenton point this moral: In certain cases, when surgeon or physician is baffled, call in a humorist.

Attempts were made in Mercer Hospital to find some way in which to restore speech to Charles Kateza, an injured iron-molder. Every medical effort failed. Then, a day or two ago, the city engineer told him a funny anecdote and he smiled, but could not laugh.

Kateza hawhawed in his sleep and awoke able to talk the nurses into a state of nervous prostration.

A week before this happened, in the very same city, a comic story, it is reported, set in place the fractured jawbone of a girl. What were the stories?

Apparently every modern hospital ought to add a George Ade or a Peter Dunne to its staff of specialists.

Superintendents and principals of schools should consider the matter of fire-drills. The drill has been put into effect in many schools in North Carolina, and in one Raleigh school it was needed. The children marched out of a smoking building without the semblance of panic. Captain Sherwood Brockwell of the insurance department has given school protection much consideration, and his help may be secured for the asking.

AMERICAN BEAUTY IN LINE FOR A THRONE?

She is Princess Hassan, Formerly Ola Humphrey.

Heir-Apparent to the Throne of Egypt, Now in the United States, Will Reveal Secrets of Harem.

(Contributed.)

Will an American woman some day grace the throne of Cleopatra?

This is the question that has arisen as a result of the recent announcement that an attempt has been made to assassinate the Khedive of Egypt. Had the bullet gone straight nothing could intervene between Princess Hassan and the throne of Egypt.

But you will ask, where does the American girl come in. Just here. The Prince Hassan is the husband of an American actress who was formerly well known on the stage and whose maiden name was Ola Humphrey. She was born in Oakland, Cal., and was for several years very prominent in Pacific Coast society. She was wooed and won under the most romantic circumstances by the eldest son of the Sultan of Egypt, Ibrahim, the next heir to the throne of the Pharaohs.

In his novel and play, "The Morals of Marcus," William Locke tells the story of "Carlotta", the fascinating little refugee who escaped from a Turkish harem. The life of Ola Humphrey seems to have been lived parallel to Carlotta's and those who knew her when she was a girl in Oakland and have followed her experiences since declare that she has lived a life which has been crowned with romance and intrigue.

* * *

A white snow-bird with the soft, soothing beauty of Southern California resting tenderly upon her cheek and brow, uttering music with a strange, compelling charm, came to the harem of the Prince Hassan, and the many wives of that Egyptian nobleman behind the four miles of palace walls listened with wonder at first, like curious little children, as she related the wonders of the Western world. Then they made their bird a comfortable golden cage in their midst.

Those who remembered Ola Humphrey when she was a girl in California, wondered what tragedy could be more mysterious and terrible than that of the beautiful American girl whose stage ability had delighted thousands of admirers and whose voice was suddenly hushed by a living death in a land where poison is swift and deadly—the land of Cleopatra and the asp.

Ola Humphrey was attracted to the Prince from the moment of their first meeting in Paris, for there was something about this heir to the Egyptian throne which drew her irresistibly towards him. Men of the East have never failed to attract women and their mysterious, secretive ways, their charming, graceful and delightful manners make them popular in the most select circles of all European capitals.

And so when the Prince Hassan offered to take this dainty flower of the West to his garden of the East she agreed to go with him and hide her face from the world and reserve it for this nobleman alone to gaze upon and feast his eyes. In the palace of the Prince she found herself welcomed by a throng of women who had never before seen a white woman so close to them and who were a little suspicious so that it was some time before she was taken into their confidence. She found them particular as to matters of etiquette, universally polite and well-behaved.

These harem women form a society apart from the rest of the world. They have constituted a peculiar feminine court, which lives its own life, has its own traditions, manners, customs, laws and etiquette. Large as is the number of women brought together, so absolute is the discipline that there is not the slightest confusion or disorder. Their lives are quiet and monotonous. They are not troubled with the worries of what they are going to wear the coming season and there are no functions which require evening dress.

But the Princess Hassan found it difficult for an American girl to adapt herself to the domestic life of an Oriental nobleman, even though he was the heir to the throne and soon she discovered that oil and water would not mix. The independent spirit of the American girl rebelled against the way of the Eastern autocrat and it was not long ere she determined to free herself of her shackles, and one day while visiting in Paris she escaped, and fled to America.

Now she is going to lay bare for the first time the secrets of the harem, and has signed a contract with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to divulge them in a series of photoplays which will be released under the significant title of "Under the Crescent." The Princess took a well known lady writer into her confidence and told her the secrets of her life in the harem and these are the foundation of the scenarios to be produced under this main title.

The arrival of the Princess in America was veiled in secrecy, and before agreeing to act out her life in the films she stipulated that no announcement should be made of her appearing in moving pictures until the films were completed. The reason for this was that she was being constantly shadowed by emissaries of the Prince Hassan and she believes he would not stop at force to prevent her from revealing the secrets of the harem which she discloses in this series of films, and she is even now not safe from the fate which has overtaken every previous attempt at escape from a bondage which is sanctioned by the highest laws of the Mohammedan creed.

The present Oriental disturbance, the unseating of the Khedive and the placing of the British choice upon the Egyptian throne, with the recent reported attempt to assassinate the Khedive, coupled with the fact that the Princess Hassan is next in line of succession, makes the situation one of intense interest, for the death of the present Egyptian ruler would mean that, for the first time in the history of the world, a true-born American girl would rule over the land where the crescent displaces the cross.

* * *

Ola Humphrey, when a little girl out there in California, probably lived in the world of dreams; the world in which most girls live while in their teens. She probably longed for a life of romance and intrigue, just as other girls have longed, and will continue to long for until the end of all things.

Are the days bringing the fulfillment of her wishes?

We wonder.

ESKIMOS TABOO COMMON TOWEL.

Family Drinking Cup Now Unpopular at Point Barrow.

The United States Public Health Service, which has maintained a sanitary service in Alaska, for the past three years, finds that the mortality from communicable diseases in Alaska is gradually falling. In the majority of the settlements the teacher is the only doctor, but medical officers of the Public Health Service make frequent visits to the various communities and teach both to the natives and the whites the methods by which tuberculosis, eye diseases and other common ailments are spread, and the way in which they may be prevented. This warfare against disease has resulted in the abolition of the deadly roller towel and the common drinking cup by the natives in general, and this hygienic reform has spread even as far as Point Barrow, the most northerly point in North America.

To those interested in public health activities, it is of great interest to note the progress made in promoting hygiene and sanitation during recent years throughout the civilized world. In this respect our wards in Alaska, the Indians and Eskimos, have not been neglected. The U. S. Bureau of Education, which has supervision of the native schools of Alaska, is cognizant of the urgent need of sanitation in the native homes and villages in order to check and eradicate the communicable diseases, the effects of which have decreased the native population 14 per cent. during the period, 1900 to 1910, according to the U. S. Bureau of Census.

A part of the appropriation for education of the natives of Alaska is being expended for the maintenance of three improvised hospitals. All schools are provided with simple remedies and a medical hand book of instructions. Lectures on tuberculosis, eye diseases, ventilation, care of infants, preparation of food, and other subjects pertaining to disease prevention measures are delivered. These talks are supplemented by individual instructions in the home. Pamphlets on the cause, prevention and cure of tuberculosis have been issued to pupils throughout the school service, and "How to Keep Well" cards placed in the homes. Various bulletins issued by the U. S. Public Health Service on health subjects have been distributed to the field workers for their information and guidance. Paper towels and individual drinking cups are being used in the schools in place of the common articles and their value explained to the children.

This campaign of warfare against disease is showing results. The natives are being educated to hygienic living, care being taken not to inculcate the customs of the white man unless they will bring about a betterment of health and economic conditions. This has resulted in a general improvement of the health of the natives of Alaska, and already the morbidity and mortality rates from the various diseases have begun to fall. The natives have co-operated heartily in this work. It is interesting to think what results would follow a similar co-operation on the part of the whites in the United States.

A COUNTRY WITHOUT FLIES.

House Flies Unknown—A Health Resort for Babies.

(State Board of Health.)

It should be refreshing and a bit encouraging to the fatigued, hopeless fly-fighters to know that there is in the world a country in which there are no flies. The place is the British West Indies. Dr. B. E. Washburn, who has recently gone to these islands in the interest of the International Health Commission and who has taken up his first work in Port of Spain, Trinidad, says in writing to friends in North Carolina:

"You will be interested to know that there are no house flies here. I did not see any of these in any of the ten islands on which we stopped. The people know nothing of the house fly and in this way, if in no other, are singularly blessed." Dr. Washburn says further, "To my surprise, I find that all of the islands, and especially British Guiana, are health resorts for babies and are so used by the people from England. It has certainly been true in our case, too, for the baby has grown very much."

This interesting fact—that there are no flies in British East Indies—starts up a number of questions and curious conjectures. Why is it they have no flies? Is it that they have lost the seed? Or is it that they have some active parasite or animal that feeds on flies, like the South American ant eater, for instance? Certainly, it is not that they have no filth. They have heat and moisture and if rumor has it true, they have all the filth that is necessary. With these three conditions we have more flies than we can manage, and that they have more favorable conditions without any flies is what we do not understand.

We are not surprised, however, to know, since there are no flies there, that it is a health resort for babies. England is fortunate in having such a place, but babies will do well at almost any place where there are no flies provided they are properly fed and are kept clean.

Were Dr. Washburn to do nothing more for international health than find out the cause for their freedom from flies by which our fly problem could be solved, he would have rendered a blessing to mankind and his name would deserve a place along with Jenner's and Pasteur's.

A "HATFUL OF PEARLS"

Jenny Lind's Generous Gift to Lablache.

(From the Pittsburgh Sun.)

On the occasion of her second rehearsal at the Paris Opera House Lablache, the famous singer, was enchanted with her voice. Hurrying up to her he said, enthusiastically:

"Give me your hand, mademoiselle! Every note in your voice is a pearl!"

Lablache handed the hat to her. Putting it to her mouth, she gave one of her matchless trills and birdlike snatches of song.

"Here," she said, smiling at the delighted Lablache, as she returned his property, "is a hatful of pearls for you, monsieur."

GRANTS PRISONER LEAVE.

Judge Permits Man to Deliver Load Before Going to Jail.

(New York Times.)

County Judge Roy, in Brooklyn, delayed pronouncing sentence on Charles Hobbins, 209 Adams street, to give the defendant time to attend to business before going to jail for attempted unlawful entry. When Judge Roy imposed a sentence of 30 days in the workhouse Hobbins, who had been out on bail, said:

"I have a horse and truck outside, Judge. If your Honor will let me I would like to deliver the load on the truck before beginning my time. Will you please give me an hour to make the delivery and I'll come right back?"

Judge Roy weighed the request for an instant.

"I'll take a chance with you," he decided. "Deliver the load and then come back and go to jail."

Hobbins returned in less than an hour and left the court room to begin serving his sentence.

UNITED STATES ARMY WAR COLLEGE

OFFICERS PLAYING THE WAR GAME.

THE WAR COLLEGE.

INTERIOR OF THE WAR COLLEGE.

By Ernest Dupuy.

THE balance wheel of the fighting mechanism known as the General Staff; this is the best definition of that most important but—outside of military circles—little known institution called the United States Army War College. The average person, who, to quote Major General John F. O'Ryan, commanding the New York National Guard, is so hard to convince 'that citizens dressed up in uniforms and provided with firearms do not constitute an army," has at best but a hazy idea of what the War College is and what it does. From its imposing buildings on the banks of the Potomac at Washington, D. C., are turned out, their post-graduate courses completed, the men who will direct the armed forces of Uncle Sam in any war that may arise, while down in its vaults are the secret war plans of the General Staff.

Some idea of the part played by the War College in the military affairs of the United States may be gathered from the general order which officially brought it into existence in 1905.

According to this order, the object of the college is "not to impart academic instruction, but to make a practical application of military knowledge already acquired."

"War is declared! Get envelope No. 17, in file No. 4."

Something similar to this will be the utterance of the Chief of Staff of the Army, in the War College Building, when word is brought to him that Congress has declared war. The General Staff officer bringing him the news will go down to the vaults of the building, and, passing the guards always on duty there before the great steel doors guarding the secrets of the army, set to work on the combination. The massive gates will swing back and he will disappear inside, to emerge again with the precious envelope containing the plans of campaign for the given situation, which have been mapped out months, years perhaps, previous, in readiness for just this occasion.

Just what envelope the Chief of Staff will require will depend upon what country has attacked the United States, and in what way. But whatever the need, down in the great vaults of the War College are the plans, waiting for the time to come—plans of campaign for the invasion of foreign countries, under all manner of circumstances; the repelling of invasion, from whatever quarter it may come. Every contingency that the human mind can figure out has been taken care of. That is the business of the War College.

IF, THROUGH THE SHORT-SIGHTEDNESS OF THE LEGISLATIVE BODY, MEN AND MATERIAL FOR THE CONSUMMATION OF THESE PROJECTS ARE WANTING, IT WILL NOT BE THE FAULT OF THE COLLEGE.

Only those officers best fitted for the work ever reach the institution, after years of study in military science in the various service schools of the army. While this course of study is open to National Guard officers, the only one among them to complete the full course and graduate from the War College with honors, proving himself to be the peer of the officers of the regular army, is Major General John F. O'Ryan, commanding the division, National Guard, of New York State.

Among the duties laid down for the War College are:—"Preparation of projets involving the organization, mobilization and concentration of troops, general strategical plans and preliminary operations."

Those three words—"general strategical plans"—cover the enormous work that has been taken up and completed by the War College. Completed is, perhaps, not the precise word, for the plans are never really completed, additions and alterations being made, of necessity, with the advancement of military science and the new discoveries therein. Other duties of the War College are the general supervision of the service schools and the preparation of critical analyses of foreign military systems.

The foregoing is the work of the permanent personnel of the college, consisting of a president, who must be a general officer; two directors from the General Staff, who must be of the rank of colonel and lieutenant colonel, respectively; a secretary, also from the General Staff, and the general staff officers on duty in the Third division. Besides these a certain number of student officers, as many as shall from time to time be ordered by the War Department, attend the War College. The students are selected by the Chief of Staff and must not be above the rank of major nor below that of captain. Preference is given to graduates of the Staff College, an important military institution which will be discussed later. The present president of the War College is Brigadier General Montgomery M. Macomb.

The student officers make critical studies of approved plans of operations and are then obliged to prepare independent plans of their own, which are carefully compared with the original. By this means not only do the student officers show what they are capable of doing, but the college benefits by fresh ideas. All tactical arrangements are studied by them, and they are required to work out special problems. The war game, or "kriegspiel," which includes an actual campaign of some previous war and working it out under modern conditions, is another part of the instruction. Since the outbreak of the titanic European struggle huge maps of the theatres of war have been placed in the college and the moves of the opposing armies are marked out and studied from day to day.

"There shall be no formal opening or ending of the terms of instruction at the War College," reads the general order to which reference has been made, "nor will there be any examination held or diploma given at the end of the course. The course is essentially one of applied knowledge on the part of capable and qualified officers, and the announcement in orders that an officer has been selected for this course of advanced work is deemed sufficient recognition of his professional attainments."

But where do these officers obtain the knowledge which will produce the qualification of efficient leadership? The layman thinks at once of West Point. But, according to a high official in the War Department, nearly fifty per cent of the officers of the regular army at the present time come from civilian life. And West Point is termed by this same official the primary school of the army officer. The cadets are turned out with but the rudiments of their profession ground into them. This is no reflection upon the course at the Military Academy, which is recognized the world over as being the best educational institution of its class. But the time taken and the number of subjects covered do not admit of any great specialization in the higher branches of military science.

To remedy this and to provide proper instruction for those officers entering the service from civilian life, garrison schools of instruction have been provided, where commanding officers are obliged to put their subordinates through a "course of sprouts" in whatever branch of the service they may be.

The course of instruction in military science is divided into several stages. The primary grade is West Point. All officers, both graduates of the Military Academy and those coming from the ranks of civilian life, then take up the grammar school of war, represented by the garrison schools of instruction. From that to the special service schools, corresponding to the high school, is the next step. For these courses they are detached from their commands. One more advance brings them to the School of the Line; then they go to the Staff College. After that they return to their command for two years, and then such as may be selected go to the War College.

Attendance at the garrison schools of instruction is compulsory and if, upon examination, at the end of a term an officer is found to be deficient he must at the end of the year have made up the deficiency or have it counted against his efficiency rating.

Now come the special service schools. As classified by the War Department they are as follows:—

(a) Artillery School, Fortress Monroe, Va.

(b) Engineer School, Washington, D. C.

(c) School of Submarine Defence, Fortress Monroe, Va.

(d) School of Application for Cavalry, Fort Riley, Kan.

(e) Army Medical School, Washington, D. C.

(f) Signal School, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

(g) School of the Line, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The special service schools are the high schools of war, and, with the exception of part of the course in the School of Application for Cavalry, and the School of the Line, are confined to special and highly technical studies and instruction in whatever branch of the service they represent. At the Artillery School and the School of Submarine Defence, ballistics, explosives, position finding and coast defence problems are studied. Field artillery officers do not have to go through the School of Submarine Defence. The Engineer, Army Medical and Signal schools explain themselves by their names. The last named has, since the introduction of the aeroplane as a factor in modern war, included aero instruction in its curriculum.

The School of Application for Cavalry and the School of the Line are broader in their courses. They are in a way finishing schools. A course at the former is of three years' duration, and includes a very stiff line of study and application in equitation, hippology and horse shoeing. This school is modelled after the world famed cavalry school of the French Army at Saumur. To it mounted officers from all branches of the service come to learn how to ride. Men who have ridden for years, and who think that they know something about horseflesh, find upon attendance there that they still have a few things to learn. Particular care is taken to teach officers how themselves to instruct others in equitation. Not every good horseman can impart his knowledge to others so that they can learn profitably. All the details of cavalry work are entered into at this school, and the capabilities and proper use of this arm of the service are drilled into the heads of the student officers.

The School of the Line, at Fort Leavenworth, is essentially a tactical school. Each year approximately forty officers of the line take up work there and are taught leadership and the care and control of troops in the field. Here, as at the Cavalry School, practical application in the field of what they are instructed in theory is made. The School of the Line is really one step ahead of the other service schools, in that it finishes up the work taken up by line officers in them, rounding out the whole thing with a thorough course in tactics. At the end of the school year of two terms the student officers pass through a very severe examination. The twenty men passing with highest marks are now in line for another and higher course of study. They are eligible for entrance in the university of war, the Staff College.

The object of the Staff College, according to the same general order we have quoted previously, is "to instruct specially selected officers of engineers, cavalry, artillery and infantry in the duties of general staff officers in time of war; also to investigate such military inventions, discoveries and developments as affect the arms of the service represented at the college, to disseminate such information required and to make such recommendations as may concern the practical efficiency of the several arms of the service in war." The course is of one year's duration.

The studies are divided into three departments—military art, engineering and law. The first two are self explanatory. The third, of law, includes both civil and military law. General staff officers are supposed to know enough of civil law to enable them to understand all questions concerning the relation of the civil and military law under all circumstances, and a thorough knowledge of the principles of civil law.

At the end of a year of work at the Staff College the officers undergo another examination, and those who pass are allowed to place the three letters "G. S. C." after their names in the Army Register, betokening that they have taken their degree in military art and science.

Graduates of the Staff College return at once to their commands for two years of work and application. Then they are eligible for the crowning degree of their life work, the Army War College.

Elihu Root, sometimes called the "Father of the War College," is the man to whom credit must be given for the establishment of the War College. While he was Secretary of War, in 1901, he put through the project, which was carried out in orders in 1904 and 1905, and in 1908 the War College Building itself, at Washington, overlooking the Potomac, was formally opened. The building was designed by McKim, Mead & White, of New York, and is acknowledged to be one of the most artistic government buildings. It contains, besides the necessary offices, study halls and lecture rooms, a huge map room, where rests one of the most complete and valuable collections of maps of the American continent in existence.

In the basement is the big fire and burglar proof vault, within which repose the secret war plans of the general staff; secrets which foreign Powers would give a good deal to look at, no matter how much they sneer, on the surface, at the United States and its lack of proper defences. This vault is guarded at all times by armed watchmen, whose vigilance is never relaxed, and the combination of the locks is known only to the Chief of Staff, the President and the directors of the War College.

The navy, too, has its war college, which performs for that branch of the service the work that the other institution does for the army. In the Naval War College, at Newport, R. I., are prepared all the plans of the navy for emergencies that may arise. Here the "kriegspiel" is played also, the huge maps being spread on the floor while officers bend over them, working out problems of naval warfare. Officers from each vessel go to the Naval War College for courses in naval work and tactics, and Secretary Daniels has also prepared a correspondence arrangement by which officers on vessels on foreign stations will be enabled to take part in the work done there. The president of the Naval War College is Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight.

While the Army and Naval War colleges are absolutely separate institutions a certain amount of co-operation is needed between their staffs in the preparation of plans for their joint action. That such plans are in existence is an open secret, but, of course, no details are made public. Absolute co-operation between land and sea forces, whenever they are to be used in conjunction with each other, is necessary.

American army and naval officers abroad at the present time with the belligerent forces are making detailed notes of the modern methods of warfare. All their data will be studied at the war colleges and the general staffs will work out their own methods of solving the problems confronting the rival generals.

It may also be said, without betraying any secrets, that general staff officers of the United States army have already worked out plans of campaign for the eastern and western theatres of the present struggle, based upon what is known of the disposition and strength of the belligerent forces, while naval men have done the same thing as regards possible struggles on the water. As the war unfolds it will be seen just where these plans are at fault or where the fighters themselves have made errors. From the result invaluable data for the proper carrying on of modern warfare will be evolved.

Handicapped as the United States is at the present time by the insufficiency of its forces for proper defence, it can at least be said that so far as the theory of national offence and defence is concerned, everything that human ingenuity and trained military minds can do to keep this country in her place among the nations has been and will continue to be done in the War College. The valor of ignorance has no place in the general staff of Uncle Sam's fighting men; they deal in facts.

When Debutantes Knit.

A BUD of the season who well deserved the name was puckering her pretty brows over a piece of gray woollen knitting. "What are you making, Dorothy?" a friend asked her.

"I don't know. It was going to be a scarf and I had fifty stitches on my needle to begin with and now there are ninety. However can it go on getting so much wider? Now they tell me that I ought to make it two and a half yards long and I simply cannot carry the dirty thing around with me that long."

"Yes," said her friend sympathetically, "I can't bear those dirty gray things, so I made a darling little pink one."

"But that won't do for a soldier."

"I know it, so I sent it for some little Belgian child. It's far more entertaining than those awful things you're doing."

"What a perfectly lovely idea! I am going to throw this away and make a blue one for a little Belgian baby. Won't it be cute?"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SEVERE DECLINE IN COTTON

Caused by Liquidation on a Larger Scale Than at Any Previous Time in a Week.

New York, May 1.—Liquidation on a larger scale than at any previous time this week caused a rather severe decline in cotton today and final prices, the lowest of the season, showed a net loss of 11 to 19 points. This was a drop of about 45 points from the recent levels. One leading spot house was credited with sales of over 15,000 bales of October, while liquidation of outside accounts was quite heavy, besides aggressive selling b ylocal traders who have been conspicuous on the bear side most of the week, was a prominent feature.

There seemed to be an almost entire absence of outside supporting orders, continuation of unsettled weather in the western belt and of fair weather east of the Mississippi appeared to exert little helpful influence and there was some significant selling from interests in South Atlantic states. Bulls also had to contend with the smaller print cloth sales at Fall River and with private Manchester cables reporting a poor demand for yarns with prices weakening and a further curtailment likely. Liverpool was also affected and came a couple of points lower than due. It is announced that trading in May contracts will cease at 12 o'clock noon on May 21. Futures closed easy.

DRY GOODS WEEKLY REVIEW

Cotton Goods Markets Held Steady Throughout the Week.

New York, May 1.—Cotton goods markets have held steady throughout the week. Prices are rising on those lines that did not follow the sharp advance in printcloths and convertibles a couple of weeks ago. Colored goods are firmer and fine cambrics and nainsooks are up 1-4c a yard from last week.

The volume of business on the medium and fine qualities of bleached cottons has been the largest for some years and wide sheetings, pillow tubings, and other staple domestics are in a well sold position. Prints and percales are more quiet after large sales for future delivery.

Ginghams are in demand for late delivery at current prices and mills are declining the business owing to the uncertainty of dyestuffs supply. Blue denims are growing very scarce in first and second hands. Discounts have been shortened on duck and are steadier for export and for home use. Inquiries and sales have been active this week for cotton goods to replace burlaps, sales of 4.25 yard sheetings and 3.50 Osnaburgs in 40-inch widths having been substantial. Wash goods and white goods for immediate shipments are in better demand.

There was a steady increase in volume of fancy goods business offered to mills for spring 1915 delivery. Manufacturers are generally believers in higher priced cotton and they are unwilling to sell late contracts unless a higher level of prices is reached.

Prices quoted: Printcloths 28-inch 64 by 64s, 3 1-4; 64 by 60s, 3 1-8, 38 4-2 inch 64 by 64s, 4 3-8, brown sheetings, Southern standards 6.1-2, denims 9 ounce 13c, tickings 8 ounce 12c, prints 5c, staple ginghams 6 1-4c, dress ginghams 9 1-4c.

ONLY "WAR" STOCKS ACTIVE

New York, May 1.—In its main aspects today's short session of the Stock Exchange was largely a repetition of recent days in the sense that a very considerable part of the turn-over was again in so-called war stocks and allied shares. Westinghouse and others in that class constituted the most prominent features, although they failed to make new high records and, in fact, reflected selling for profits at the end. Studebaker was strongest of the Motor group with a new high record on rumors of dividend prospects.

Standard stocks were more or less neglected throughout and for the most part fell under yesterday's lowest quotations, though showing some betterment at the close. United States Steel was the only one of the speculative favorites to show relative steadiness rising to its best in the final dealings. General news of the day which dealt with improved conditions in many lines of trade, particularly textiles and steel, together with latest war developments played little it any part in the day's operations.

The bank statement was in line with expectations showing a large actual cash gain with an expansion of over $30,000,000 in loans.

The bond market was even more irregular than the stock list on a minimum of trading. Total sales, par value, $2,250,000. United States coupon and registered 2s and Panama 3s declined 1-4c on call during the week.

COTTON LOWER AT NEW ORLEANS.

Selling Pressure Based on Relief of Drought in East and Center.

New Orleans, May 1.—Selling pressure based on relief of the drought in the Eastern and Central portions of the belt forced the price of cotton to lower levels today. Opening prices were very nearly the highest while the close was at the lowest, at a loss of 16 points. While a part of the selling was for short account, there was much liquidation in evidence. Liverpool was lower than due. Private cable messages from that market gave a pessimistic view of business conditions in the Manchester cloth and yarn market.

The absence of further rains in Texas was considered most encouraging in connection with the Western crop and led to more or less selling.

Bulls offered little or no support at any time.

Cotton futures closing: May 9.62; July 9.95; October 10.20; December 10.36; January 10.44.

Spot cotton quiet; six points down. Middling 9.37; sales on the spot 850 bales; to arrive, none.

In letting the contract for a residence or other building, it would be a good idea to consult your architect on the relative costs of the different materials. Ask him about the advantages of a slate roof, whether in the long run this roofing will not be cheaper than one of shingles. The fire hazard is not great, the insurance cost is much less than for a shingle roof, and the wear is negligible. The architect might give you any number of pointers that will save you money and preserve your building.

"As the enemy knows the meaning of this full well it is easy for him to avoid the necessity of our shelling Rheims.

"The enemy lost three air-craft yesterday. An English airman was shot down southwest of Thielt, near Bruges, Belgium, another fell near Wieltje as the result of our fire, and a third enemy aeroplane was obliged to land near Niedersulzbach."

MOSTLY CONTEMPLATIVE

By T. W. CHAMBLISS.

The gift of sympathy is as rare as it is helpful. Most men know but a few to whom they can unburden their souls with full assurance of being understood. Genuine sympathy requires the ability to put yourself in the other man's place. You must be able to think first of his make-up, the mental attitude he has developed. You must be able to realize how such a mind would react upon certain difficulties. You must forget your own make-up for the moment and picture yourself in his soul-house with his mental furniture back of you. Lack of sympathy comes from expecting others to react upon given forces just as we do.

Put yourself in his place if you wish to show genuine sympathy to a friend. It is a divine thing to bring others to feel that they can unburden their weighted hearts to you. This was a feature of the genius of the helpfulness of Jesus Christ. Everywhere people came to Him and told Him all and they were sure of a sympathetic ear. Many a soul is carrying a leaden burden, yearning for someone to talk to, someone who will understand, and be kindly and helpful. Someone who will show sympathy. But genuine sympathy is so hard to find.

It is not wise to minimize the sorrow or heartache of the world. We know conditions. Sorrow is here. Heartaches are all about us. It has been ever so. Whether it is physical or mental—sorrow is here and will ever be. It is a fact to deal with. It takes a broad mind to catch the full measure of a difficulty. It takes a broad mind to see all sides of a trouble. It takes a broad mind to fail to ignore that which is real and separate that which is imaginary from that which is actual. No prophet seeking disciples was ever more frank concerning the hardships to be encountered than Jesus of Nazareth. Again and again He warned His followers of the troubles that would smite them. Jesus never glossed a danger. When people came to Him and poured out their hearts' problems, He recognized the burning reality of that they were facing. Calmly and quietly, but with tenderest sympathy, He faced their difficulties with them. He is the example of genuine sympathy. Jesus had overcome so many difficulties Himself that He knew unerringly the direct road to the summit. He could say with perfect certainty, I know the way out, for I have overcome this very problem. No man who has merely toyed with the hard things of life, shirked the direct route and gone around by devious paths is of much value in measuring the height and the depth of another's trouble. It is a great thing to speak out of an experience and say, I know this thing—it can be overcome—I have done it.

WINSTON-SALEM MAN SAVED FROM DEATH

J. E. Erwin Says Wonderful Remedy Brought Him Astonishing Relief.

J. E. Erwin of Winston-Salem, N. C., was for a long time the victim of serious disorders of the stomach. He tried all kinds of treatment and had many doctors.

One day he took a dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and was astonished at the results. The help he sought had come. He wrote:

"I am satisfied through personal use of the life-saving powers of your Wonderful Remedy. You have saved my life. I could have lived but a few weeks more had it not been for your remedy. I am inclosing a list of friend sufferers who ought to have some of your remedy."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.
